15 PER CENT RAIL FREIGHT RAISE URGED

Three Groups Will Join in Petition to Be Filed Within Week.

CHIEFS UNANIMOUS IN ASKING INCREASE

Claim Money Is Needed for Restoring Credit and Improving Service.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—The presidents of Eastern, Southern and Western railroads, meeting here today, voted unanimously to petition the Interstate Commerce Commission for an increase in freight rates of 15 per cent.

J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford; Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific, and W. R. Cole, president of the Louisville & Nashville, were appointed a committee, representative of the Eastern, Western and Southern railways, respectively, to sign and present the petition to the commission. It is expected it will be filed next week.

After today's meeting the following statement was issued: "At a meeting of executives of the Eastern, Western and Southern groups it was unanimously decided to apply to the Interstate Commerce Commission and to the State commissions for a 15 per cent increase in all freight rates and charges.

To File Within Week.

"A committee consisting of the chairmen of the three groups was authorized to prepare and file a joint application with the respective commissions. It is hoped that this can be done within a week.

"The application will contain a full statement of reasons for the action of the carriers. Measures will be taken to afford the public adequate access to the statements and the application of the carriers."

The reference to "charges" in the statement is understood to include charges for switching and similar services performed at various terminal cities as distinguished from charges collected for hauling freight. That term does not refer to express rates, but it is considered logical by some railroad men that an increase in express rates might be sought to equalize them with the anticipated higher freight rates.

Expenses Reported at Minimum.

The petition to the commissions, it is understood, will emphasize the present plight of the railroads and will ask for the increase to permit them to restore their credit and improve their service. Expenses have been reduced to a minimum already, and it is not possible to reduce them further and maintain efficient operations, the petition will say.

The 15 per cent increase will apply to all freight rates and charges except those enjoying differentials. Such rates will be increased, but the existing differentials will be preserved. For example, if the present rates on a shipment from one station to two destinations are, respectively, $1 and $1.15 a ton, the new rates to both destinations will be increased, but one will remain 15 cents lower than the other.

Railroad officials consider time an important element in the present situation, and they hope to have the higher rates in force as soon after September 30 as possible.

Quick Action to Be Asked.

Consequently, the petition will ask for a blanket increase of 15 per cent and will ask the State and Interstate Commerce Commissions to act as expeditiously as possible and without suspension. Ordinarily a petition for a change in rates is presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission and a 90-day period of "suspension" passes before it becomes effective. The commission has the authority to abrogate this practice.

Railroad officials emphasized today that their petition seeks "restoration" of revenues lost by piecemeal reductions of specific rates. If the freight rates in force in 1921 had not been reduced the 1930 gross revenues would have been $800,000,000 greater on the same volume of traffic, it is estimated.

Railroad stocks responded promptly to the news of the meeting and net gains among them ranged from $2 to $9.50 a share.

1 Dead, 5 Injured In Tornado's Path

Girl, 16, Killed, Mother Hit in Oklahoma; 4 of Texas Family Hurt.

Muskogee, Okla., June 11 (A.P.).—Mamie Landrum, 16, was killed and her mother, Mrs. Donie McGowan, was slightly injured tonight when a tornado struck Fort Gibson, a small town 10 miles northeast of here.

Mrs. McGowan and her daughter were alone in her home when the tornado demolished the house. The girl was buried beneath the debris.

Brady, Tex., June 11 (A.P.).—Four persons were injured, one seriously, late today when a small tornado demolished the seven-room farm home of Jack Whitehead, in Rochelle, near here.

Mrs. Whitehead suffered a broken leg, internal injuries and cuts and bruises. Her three children, Virginia, 11; W. M., 7, and J. B., 3, were cut and bruised.

Policeman Pumphrey's Baby, 2, Dies of Injuries From Blazing Clothing.

Childish curiosity, coupled with the desire to experiment, yesterday cost the life of Lois Mae Pumphrey, 2-year-old daughter of Policeman J. L. Pumphrey, of the Second Precinct. She was fatally burned while playing with matches in the side yard of her home at 336 G street southeast.

For the second time in six weeks, tragedy struck the Pumphrey household. The child's mother died suddenly from a heart attack last April. She was 22 years old. Since that time, an aunt, Mrs. George Thompson, has been taking care of the home.

Disregarding oft-repeated warnings that matches in a box on the kitchen stove were not to be touched, Lois, together with her brother, Robert, 3,

LABOR GOVERNMENT FACES FRESH CRISIS

MacDonald Government May Lose Power in Land Tax Vote on Tuesday.

London, June 11 (A.P.).—A great British political crisis loomed steadily nearer tonight with the threat of a split between Laborites and Liberals which may determine the fate of the MacDonald government in next week's debate on the controversial land-tax bill.

David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, in a speech at Edinburgh today, set forth the critical nature of a situation that, although confused in detail, is simple in its main outlines and is increasingly threatening to the MacDonald government.

The contention is over the government's finance bill, implementing Philip Snowden's budget, with its provision two years hence for a tax of a penny a pound on the capital value of land. The proposal was first welcomed in principle by Lloyd George and the majority of his liberal leaders, but they later decided to move for an amendment under which certain sections of land taxpayers should have compensatory relief in the form of income tax reduction. This amendment will be debated in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Lloyd George made it clear today he stands firmly by the "substance" of the amendment and if he carries the bulk of Liberals with him, as now seems more than likely, the government will be defeated Tuesday night.

The feeling among political observers was that such a defeat would mean the dissolution of Parliament and a general election. This would not entail the resignation of the government, for resignation would imply Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's advising King George to ask Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, to form an alternative government.

The recommendation that MacDonald would be most likely to make to the king, it is believed in the best-informed circles, would be for a dissolution of Parliament and a new election while labor remained tech-

TEAR GAS FOILS JAIL DELIVERY OF MINERS

2,000 Men and Women Are Routed After Fighting in Ohio Coal Zone.

St. Clairsville, Ohio, June 11 (A.P.). Two thousand men and women stormed the Belmont County Jail here tonight in an effort to force the release of eleven striking coal miners arrested during disorders at the new Lafferty mine of the M. A. Hanna Coal Co.

Sheriff Howard Duff, 40 sheriff's deputies and a group of American Legion members, armed with tear gas bombs and machine guns, broke up the crowd and arrested the leader, Leo Thompson, of Pittsburgh, reputed Communist and leader of the national miners' union.

Thompson's arrest followed a melee during which Duff was struck by several of the demonstrators. To rescue the sheriff, a deputy fired a gas bomb, which resulted in seven women and five men being overcome. Although repulsed, the demonstrators continue to mill about the jail and an additional crowd of approximately 4,000 was attracted to the scene. Fearing another outbreak, Duff sent to Bellaire for reinforcements and a larger supply of tear gas bombs.

The eleven men held in the jail were arrested earlier in the night, when a march on the new Lafferty mine was broken up by Duff and his deputies, who stood at the entrances ready to use their guns and gas bombs. The strikers retreated after spending an hour trying to enter the mine, employing 350 men. Duff quoted the strike leaders as saying they planned to force suspension "if we have to go into the pit and drag the men out." The workers previously had voted to remain on the job.

Tonight's disorders followed a day that saw a dynamiting and an attack upon working miners in Jefferson and Belmont Counties. Acting to meet the emergency, county commissioners appropriated $25,000 to be used by Duff in employing deputies to maintain order during the strike, which involves 1,000 miners in the two counties.

Duff said he was determined to prevent violence and was recruiting

Faulty Diet, Lack of Oxygen Believed Cause of Insanity

Dr. Walter Freeman, of St. Elizabeths, Tells Medical Association Certain Types of Mental Disease Are Due to Nutritional Deficiency.

Philadelphia, June 11 (A.P.).—Dual personality may be only lack of oxygen in the nervous system, and some forms of insanity only a little deficiency of sulphur and iron in the brain.

The indications pointing in this direction were presented to the American Medical Association convention today by Walter Freeman, M. D., Washington, D. C., chairman of the section on nervous and mental diseases.

Some types of insanity, he said, may eventually prove to be nutritional deficiency diseases which can be handled almost as effectively as scurvy and rickets, both at one time a world-wide curse and both now disappearing.

Dr. Freeman's studies were made at St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, where some sensational advances in relieving insanity by use of carbon dioxide and oxygen gases and amytal recently were made public by him and his colleague, Dr. Karl H. Langenstrasse. The further advances portrayed today are based upon combining with medicine the sciences of chemistry and physics to search for causes of insanity.

Speaking of the dual personality type of insanity, schizophrenia, Dr. Freeman said:

"The role of defective oxidation in the nervous system in schizophrenia rests upon considerable evidence, and the striking parallels, from the chemical standpoint, between the phases of manic-depressive psychosis and the hibernation cycle of certain mammals, point to some phasic alteration in colloidal dispersion

NEW BRUENING MOVE CENTER OF ATTENTION

Leaves to Give President Report on Chequers Conferences.

CABINET OFFICIALLY APPROVES RESULTS

Chancellor's Friends Believe He Will Stand Against Reichstag Sessions.

Berlin, June 11 (A.P.).—Once again, as after the National Socialist landslide of September, 1930, the eyes of Germany tonight were turned upon Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, Europe's youngest premier.

Bruening left Berlin this evening for Neudeck, the East Prussia summer place of President Paul von Hindenburg, to make his report to the president of the Chequers conversations and the German political situation.

In the meantime, Berlin buzzed with questions about the course the chancellor would follow. People wondered whether he would finally yield to the pressure of opposition parties and permit the Reichstag to be assembled, or whether he would compromise with the opposition and change at least some of the new emergency tax decrees, which have been the subject of bitter protests.

Will Stand Firm, Friends Say.

They wondered, also, whether he might sacrifice some of his colleagues in the cabinet to the opposition in order to save his own position.

The cabinet today officially approved the events of his conference at Chequers with Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Minister Henderson, of Great Britain. There was also some speculation as to whether he might advise President Von Hindenburg to dissolve the Reichstag.

But among his friends the conviction prevailed that, as on previous occasions, the chancellor would refuse to be stampeded. He is feeling his ground deliberately and determinedly, they said, and making up his mind about what course to pursue.

Those who know him best insisted, first of all, that he would stand or fall with his cabinet. Foreign Minister Curtius and Finance Minister Dietrich are especially opposed by the Nationalists, but Bruening's friends insisted that if these two ministers resigned the chancellor would resign with them.

Dictatorship Is Demanded.

It was also believed there was no chance he would permit the convocation of the Reichstag, which is not due to reconvene until next October. To do so, his friends said, would be to open the door to opposition debate and resolution which would serve only to wreck the sensitive machinery the chancellor has been building up at Chequers and through the ambassadors in various capitals.

Communist opposition which approached the near-riot stage in four towns in Germany last night was reported to the chancellor today.

In a debate on the emergency decrees today in the Prussian diet in Berlin Communist deputies called loudly for revolutionary action and the installation of a dictatorship.

At Oldenburg the Diet passed a Nationalist bill demanding that the

Owens Jury Locked Up After 7 Hours Study

Little Faith Placed in Rumors of Hopeless Deadlock on Verdict in Lane Murder Case; Defendant Confident of Acquittal.

The fate of Garry Ralph Owens, indicted as the slayer of James H. Lane, street car motorman-conductor, placed in the hands of a jury of ten men and two women yesterday afternoon, is still undecided.

The case was given to the jury by Justice Peyton Gordon at 3:30 yesterday afternoon. Seven hours later, in what appeared to be a hopeless deadlock, the justice ordered the jurors locked up in a hotel over night. They will be brought to the court house at 10 o'clock today to resume their deliberations.

Rumors about the court house last night were that the jury stood ten to two. The rumors varied as to just which way the majority stood. However, since the jurors' room was closely guarded by deputy United States Marshals, little credence was placed in the reports.

Lane was shot on Nichols avenue southeast at about 9 p. m. March 18. His death in Providence Hospital four days later created a sensation because of the prevalence at that time of a series of crimes. A man hunt that lasted for days was initiated by police and a drag net thrown about Anacostia resulted in picking up Owens.

He was released, only to be rearrested several days later when police questioned Charles Owens, who told them he and his uncle had left Garry's home, the latter armed with a pistol, to get some bread and cigarets. He said Garry stopped the one-man street car and that while his face was turned a shot rang out. He glanced backward, saw Lane stagger from his car and then, he said, joined Garry in flight.

As the jury deliberated his fate in a room just above him, Garry Owens sat in the lock-up, with his wife and his attorneys, James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett consoling him. He seemed to take stoically the position in which he has been placed. At no time did he evince nervousness concerning the verdict.

He expressed confidence in the outcome of the trial and assured newspapermen that he bore no ill will toward his nephew, Charles Owens, also indicted, who turned against him and testified for the Government. Owens indicated that he was anxious to get out and find a job so that he could support the wife who has stuck by him and who bolstered his alibi story that he was in his home with her at the time that Lane was shot in a robbery attempt. Various members of the Owens family testified in his defense as alibi witnesses, including two nephews, 9 and 11 years old.

On the way, he testified, Garry told him: "I shot the ——." Defense attorneys introduced evidence that tended to show that neither Garry nor Charles was near the scene at the time. The novel feature of the defense building up a case for a government witness, who appeared against their own client, was seen as witness after witness testified that Charlie could not have been where he testified he was.

Assistant United States Attorney William E. Collins, who prosecuted the case for the Government, bitterly assailed Garry Owens.

WU RESIGNS RATHER THAN PERIL CANTON

Nanking Order for Planes and Munitions Results in Envoy's Action.

Unwilling to take a step that might imperil his home people of Canton in their growing strife with the Nanking government, Chao-Chu Wu has resigned as China's envoy to the United States.

Long out of sympathy with the policies of the Nanking regime under Chiang Kai-Shek, the breaking point was reached when he was instructed to seek an export permit for munitions which he feared might be used against the Cantonese.

He submitted his resignation Wednesday. It became effective yesterday and he took his leave of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson. Toward the end of the month he plans to sail for Canton, the birthplace also of his father, who, like himself, served as Minister from China to America.

"The last straw was the necessity for me to apply," the minister said in an informal announcement of his resignation, "for export licenses for munitions ordered by the Nanking government to go to China. Since there seemed to be warlike preparations by the Nanking government against the rival government of Canton, it is highly probable that most, if not all, of the munitions for which I have been instructed to apply for export license would be used against the Cantonese.

"As I am a Cantonese, any one can appreciate my feelings not to want

Arraignment of Capone Set for Early Next Week

Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—"Scarface Al" Capone will be arraigned early next week before Judge John P. Barnes on an indictment charging him with violation of the income tax laws.

United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said the Government would seek a trial this summer in the event the gang chieftain pleads not guilty. Capone was indicted for failure to pay the Government $215,000 on an alleged income of $1,000,000 between 1924 nad 1929.

Court Voids Conviction Of Bishop Cannon's Son

Los Angeles, Calif., June 11 (A.P.). The appellate department of the superior court reversed today the conviction of Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., on a charge of violation of the State wage law. The case, tried in a justice of the peace court at Pasadena in February, involved a wage claim of $33.30 by a teacher of the Elmonte Military Academy.

The appellate department said the elements of the alleged offense were not sufficiently proved.

NEW MOTOR TAXES LOOM FOR DISTRICT

Special Committee of House Will Also Recommend Levy on Incomes.

Revision of the District tax system, including the imposition of taxes not now levied in the District, is to be embodied in bills which will be submitted the next session of Congress by the special House District fiscal relations committee, of which Representative Carl E. Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, is chairman.

The program of the committee adopted at a three-day gathering which ended yesterday includes:

Doubling the gasoline tax, increasing it from 2 to 4 cents a gallon.

A new automobile tax law, with a graduated tax based on the weight of automobiles.

Enactment of an inheritance tax law.

Enactment of an income tax law, as a substitute for the existing tax on intangible personal property.

Revision of the taxation levied on public utilities in the District, eliminating the tax on gross receipts now levied on the street car lines, as well as repealing exemptions now allowed on certain railroad properties in the District.

Enactment of a corporation tax law.

The program of the committee was set forth in a formal statement issued by Chairman Mapes with the approval of all members of the committee. In making the program public, Mr. Mapes said that it had been adopted with the understanding that it would be subject to final approval at a later meeting of the committee to be held in November prior to the opening of the next session of Congress.

Nothing was done about the real estate tax rate nor was any decision made on the question of Federal appropriation for the District. What would be a comparative real estate tax for District residents could not be determined until the effect of the proposed new taxes could be ascertained, Mr. Mapes said.

The committee estimated that the inheritance tax would net the District about $600,000 a year in revenue while the other proposed taxes would bring in an additional $3,000,000 a year.

Adoption of the program had been forecast from facts developed in the course of the study of District tax matters by George Lord, tax expert, employed by the committee to aid it in its work.

Appointed primarily because of the fight over the amount of the annual

BEAUTY MURDERED, CLOSE FRIEND SAYS

London Artist Holds Motive Was to Silence Starr Faithfull in Lawsuit.

London, Friday, June 12 (A.P.).—Scotland Yard, a "mystery man" and an alleged "$25,000 settlement case" were featured in two London newspapers this morning in articles on the strange death of Starr Faithful near New York.

The London Daily Express said that Scotland Yard started last night on a hunt for the "mystery man" whom Starr was said to have sought twelve times a day during her visit to London in 1928.

The London Daily Mail, printing a purported interview with Rudolph Haybrook, scenic artist and described as Starr's closest friend in London, quoted the artist as saying the girl was murdered "because she was to have been the principal witness in a $25,000 settlement case which would be a sensation when it came to court."

Regarding the mystery man said to be sought by Scotland Yard, the Express said that when the girl stayed for two days at the Golden Cross Hotel in London in 1928, she called twelve times a day at another hotel in an effort to meet this "mystery" friend, but failed.

She became very despondent, the paper said, and at last returned to America, leaving her baggage behind. In one of the trunks, the paper said, was found a diary "so frank that the manager of the hotel locked it up." The baggage, it said, was eventually sent to New York.

In its purported interview with Mr. Haybrook the Mail quoted the artist as saying that there were influential people in New York who would have been concerned in the "settlement case" and to whom Starr's death would have been a matter of importance.

The Mail said that Mr. Haybrook was engaged to Starr's sister, Sylvia, and that he was in constant touch with the girl's family.

Capt. Robert B. Irving, of the Cunard liner Franconia, said tonight that so far as he knew Miss Faithfull was not a passenger on his ship when he left New York, but came aboard as a visitor.

The captain, whose ship is laid up in the Thames dock, said he was notified on the bridge that a woman visitor was still on board after they left the landing stage and were on their way back to England. At this time it was impossible to return, so he said he hailed a tug into which she was safely lowered, and the tug headed for the landing stage.

Capt. Irving added that the woman apparently had a number of friends on the ship and appeared to be in a very jovial mood.

Several members of the crew of the Franconia said they had seen Miss Faithfull on the ship several times, but they did not know whether she was visiting a passenger or a member of the ship's staff on her last appearance.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—While a Nassau County grand jury was preparing to inquire into the death of Starr Faithfull, District Attorney Elvin E. Edwards late today ordered a

Lindbergh May Try Daring Seaplane Hop Across Asia

Experts at First Regard Plan as Fantastic; Colonel and Wife, Here Arranging Tour, Undecided Which of Four Routes to Take.

(United Press.)

A flight across Asia by seaplane—a project so bold that Government aviation experts at first thought it fantastic—is one of four plans under consideration by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh for his flight to Japan and China with his wife.

It had been taken for granted, when first he announced his plan for a "vacation tour" of Japan and China, that Lindbergh would go by way of the Pacific Coast. But recently he has been hinting that he might take the "northeastern" route, and it was assumed that he would have wheels put on his plane, if he did so, after crossing the Atlantic.

Yesterday, Lindbergh, here on a brief visit with his wife, explained in his usual matter-of-fact way that however he went, it would be a seaplane flight all the way. If he went across Siberia, he said, he would depend on rivers and lakes for landing places.

This particular route would take the Lindberghs via Greenland and Spitzbergen, up in the Arctic, then to the northern European mainland—Norway or Russia—and then down and across 4,000 to 5,000 miles of Asia—all in a plane equipped with pontoons.

"It would mean some long land jumps," Lindbergh said yesterday after he and his wife attended a luncheon at the Japanese Embassy. "But I think we can depend to some degree on rivers and lakes for landing places. I don't know to what degree yet. If we had to make a forced landing on land, it would be as safe as if our plans had wheels

YOUTHS CHEER PREDICTION OF G.O.P. VICTORY

Reelection of Hoover Is Held Certain by Fess and Mrs. Gann.

YOUNG VOTERS HEAR INSURGENTS FLAYED

Campus Spirit Pervades as Plan of Campaign Is Formulated.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A campus spirit pervaded the Willard ballroom yesterday, as young Republican men and women from all parts of the country gathered here to take and give advice in connection with rounding up votes for the 1932 campaign.

Predictions that President Hoover would be renominated and would again lead the Republican party to victory at the polls were lustily cheered by the Young Republicans. Today they will call on the President at the White House.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, praised the Republican tariff, denounced the Republican insurgents, and then departed from his speech to say:

"When the American people realize what President Hoover has done for them in the present emergency, he not only will be unanimously renominated but overwhelmingly reelected."

Mrs. Gann Predicts Victory.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Charles Curtis, in her first real political speech, praised President Hoover and predicted a Republican victory next year.

Mrs. Gann, wearing a blue frock and with a silver fox pelt around her shoulders, spoke in a voice that hardly could have carried more than ten rows, but she was heartily cheered by the audience.

"There never was a time," she said, "when it was more important to keep a Republican at the head of the Government than now, and I sincerely hope you will each and every one begin immediately working to that end. Pledge as many as you can to the Republican party. Work in perfect harmony with your local organizations and we will be victorious in 1932."

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican national committee, and the man responsible for the conference of young Republicans, injected a little drama into the meeting. He told of the villainy of the Democrats in his home town of Louisville, Ky., and when he had finished the young people were considerably worked up.

Republicanism Beaten Into Lucas.

"I became a Republican long before I ever heard of a protective tariff," Mr. Lucas said. "Republicanism was beaten into my head by the billies of Democratic policemen.

"As a youngster, I saw Republicans beaten up and shot down on the streets by a Democratic organization. Finally three of us youngsters formed a Republican organization, and after considerable work, we cleaned up the City of Louisville and put the Republican party in power. We have kept it there ever since."

Mr. Lucas expressed the hope that the Young Republicans of New York would be able to do likewise and smash Tammany's grip on the city.

Paul E. Lockwood, a husky young fellow with a vibrant voice like that of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, told Mr. Lucas and the others that the Young Republicans of Brooklyn were trying to do that very thing.

Had Democrats Indicted.

"We are not very strong," he said, "but we make a terrible lot of noise. We watch deals in which the city buys real estate, determine who gets the dough, and then we send embarrassing telegrams to Gov. Roosevelt. So far, we have had seven Democrats indicted, and I can promise you that there are more to come. I think that idea, if carried to the hinterland, might help out."

A practical suggestion also was offered by William Sherman Green, a young Republican from New Jersey. Pacing up and down the platform like a cheer leader at a college pep meeting, Green told of plans being made to arouse young Republicans in his

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

State. The drive, he said, will begin at an open-air rally in October.

"Believe me," he said, "we will have some snappy speeches at that meeting, and a darn good feed, too. My idea is to give them a good social meeting and plenty to eat. Get them there, and you can talk to them."

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who supported Herbert Hoover in 1928, might be invited, Mr. Green suggested, and there might be dancing. The point was, he said, that the political game must be played the way young people want to play it.

Regards Food Vital in Politics.

"Don't forget the food," he said, concluding.

Many of the young people have not long been out of colleges and universities. Three of the women who spoke yesterday are holders of degrees. They are Mrs. Mary Fisher Brown, daughter of former Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania, a graduate of Goucher College, Baltimore; Mrs. Gladys Towles Root, of California, a graduate of the University of Southern California, and Miss Rachel Hayward, of Ohio, a graduate of Wellesley College.

Mrs. Brown's appeal for the renomination of President Hoover drew loud applause, because it was not lost on any one that she came from a State where dwells the only man who is seriously thinking of trying to get the nomination himself—Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

It Wasn't All Serious.

The meeting was not altogether a serious affair. Executive Director Lucas told a joke about an ice man and a husband in a kimona that must still have everybody guessing, and young Osro Cobb, a Republican member of the Arkansas Legislature, told one about the man in Kentucky who had seventeen sons. All but one grew up to be Democrats, and that one became a Republican. Questioned about this, the father said:

"I dunno. I tried to bring them up right, but John, the ornery cuss, he got to readin'."

Mr. Cobb said he was hopeful that the Democrats of the South could be persuaded to read more Republican literature.

"It takes considerable courage to be a Republican down South," he said. "We are compelled to fight for every inch of ground and often we labor under peculiar sectional difficulties. In the face of such adversity we have been constantly enlisting new recruits and our progress has been most encouraging.

Arkansas Republicans Active.

"We are sometimes accused of holding the party down in the South merely to distribute patronage among a few persons. This is certainly not true in Arkansas, where we not only welcome new recruits, but where we are actively in the field to get them. I might add that all the executives of the party in Arkansas work without any salary, stenographic hire or paid office space."

A change of 5 per cent in the total vote in Arkansas in 1928, he said, would have given the State to Mr. Hoover, "even after the Democrats had done their subtracting."

Peter F. Snyder, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Labor, who delivered the longest speech of the afternoon, dwelt on immigration and the tariff. He said he welcomed the Democratic assaults on the Smoot-Hawley act, especially because they are coming so early.

If the Democrats had waited and had decided to assail the tariff late in the campaign, he said, they might have had a chance to win. As it is, he said, the voters will have plenty of time to study the situation as it actually exists, and to decide for themselves which party to the controversy is right.

Points Benefits of Tariff.

"But for the tariff," Mr. Snyder said, "our commodity markets would be glutted with imported goods, made to undersell and drive American products out of business. But for the immigration laws, we would be overwhelmed by millions of aliens, ready and willing to work cheaply and drive American laborers from their jobs.

"Let us not be deceived by specious pleas for world markets. The American market, with 90 billions of purchasing power per annum, is the greatest in the world. It is ours of right, and the only way to hold it against the pressure of cheap foreign commodities is by maintaining a tariff wall. It is not true that by this policy we reduce our exports or our imports. The former depend upon our ability to finance, invent, design and excel. The latter depend upon our ability to purchase out of domestic profits.

"Neither is it true that by imposing tariff duties we drive American industry abroad, or encourage retaliatory tariffs. American industry began to move abroad with the invention of the sewing machine and the graphophone."

The fact that 67 per cent of imports to the United States come in duty free under the Smoot-Hawley act, he said, gives the lie to the charge that the American tariff wall is prohibitive.

Brown Extends Greetings.

At the opening session in the morning, the young Republicans were welcomed by Postmaster General Brown, who took the occasion to describe President Hoover as "one whose courage, patience, patriotism and wisdom has made us all proud.

Not all those in the ball room could be described as "young" Republicans. Present, for example, was white-haired Joe Tolbert, the Republican national committeeman for South Carolina, an individual who never wears a tie, and who now, because of a patronage scandal, is in bad with the administration.

The number of young folk present, however, was encouraging to Executive Director Lucas and to Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, director of the Women's division of the Republican national committee, who at the outset had not expected it to be so large.

In the course of the day several Republican leaders stopped by to witness the proceedings, among them Walter Newton, secretary to President Hoover.

Fess Scores Insurgents.

Senator Fess, who made the keynote speech, pictured President Hoover as one leader who has the ability and the vision to guide the country out of the depression in which it now finds itself. He defended the Smoot-Hawley bill, praised the President for standing out against demands for a "dole" at the last session, and then paid his respects to the insurgents in his party. An insurgency which holds the balance of power and which is responsible to no party leadership, he said, is destructive to all party responsibility and party government.

"There must be no insurgency in our party which refuses to abide by party leadership," he said.

Representative Arthur M. Free, of California, whose district takes in Palo Alto, home of the President, joined Senator Fess in assailing the Republican insurgents, and, like Senator Fess, predicted that the President would be renominated and reelected.

John P. Chapple, editor of the Ashland (Wis.) Daily Press, criticized those individuals whom he described as "disciples of destruction"—individuals who, under the stimulus of the depression, are seeking to have America forsake its basic principles of economic and social organization.

"Political-Industrial Tyranny" Hit.

"These destroyers;" he said, "would replace individual initiative, freedom to work out one's own destiny, and the private ownership and operation of our great American business and industrial organizations, by a political and industrial tyranny at the head of which they hope to place themselves in power."

In Wisconsin, he said, young Republicans are conducting a crusade to head off such a movement before the Legislature.

Donald J. Sherbundy, an instructor in government at the American University, and a member of the National Republican Club, told the assemblage that the Republican party, because of the depression, was facing a "crisis," and he appealed to all young Republicans to get to work and prepare for the forthcoming campaign.

There will be two sessions again today, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. Tonight the delegates will attend a dance at the Willard.

HOOVER COMPLETES SPEECHES FOR TOUR

Three Addresses to Be Given in States of Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday completed work on three speeches he will deliver in Indiana, Ohio and Illinois.

It will be the fourth time the President has traveled into the great farming belt which cuts across the three States since he was inaugurated. The visit to Springfield, Ill., Wednesday, will be the farthest West he has gone.

Monday night he will address the Indiana Republican Editorial Association at Indianapolis.

Tuesday afternoon, at Marion, Ohio, he will dedicate the tomb of Warren G. Harding, under whom Mr. Hoover served as Secretary of Commerce.

He will then go to Columbus, 40 miles distant, to review a parade of the Grand Army of the Republic and to receive the veterans and the public at a reception in the rotunda of the State House.

Next he will go to Springfield where he will rededicate the tomb of Abraham Lincoln. It will be the first time a President of the United States has spoken at the Lincoln Tomb.

The Presidential Special will leave Washington Sunday night, but the President expects to get away from the Capital this afternoon or tomorrow morning for two days of rest at his Rapidan Camp before his trip begins.

Present plans call for him to board the special train at Orange, Va., 30 miles from the camp.

He expects to return to Washington late Thursday afternoon.

On his other three trips to the Midwest he spoke in Cleveland to the American Bankers Association, and twice journeyed to Cincinnati, first to take part in ceremonies opening the deep channel down the Ohio River and later to attend the funeral of Nicholas Longworth.

LINDBERGHS LAY PLANS AT JAPANESE LUNCHEON

Underwood & Underwood.

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who are soon to start on an airplane tour of the Orient, were photographed while discussing plans for their flight with Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, and Mme. Debuchi at the embassy where a luncheon was given in the couple's honor yesterday.

LINDBERGH STUDIES 4 ROUTES FOR FLIGHT

Whether we could get up again would be another matter."

The other routes under consideration are:

Across the United States, or Canada, up the Pacific Coast to Alaska, along the Aleutian Islands to the Kamchatka Peninsula of Siberia, and so down the Japanese Kurile Islands to Japan proper.

To Alaska, as in the first route, then up beyond the Bering Sea across the narrow Bering Strait to the Siberian mainland, and so down.

Up through Canada to Hudsons Bay, then along the northern coast of Canada to Alaska and Siberia.

The first two routes involve no long water flights. The main disadvantage, particularly along the Aleutian route, is fog and rain. June and July are the best flying months. Lindbergh said yesterday it would take him some weeks to get ready.

Canadian Route Interesting.

As for the Canadian route, it would mean some interesting flying—up in the Hudsons Bay Co. trading post area, with the many connecting lakes furnishing good landing places. It was assumed by governmental experts that if he took this route he would go to Ottawa, Cochrane and Rupert House, the trading post at the bottom of the great bay, then up the west side of the bay to the northern coast of Canada, and so westward.

He would find a fueling station at Herschel Island, and the terminal point of a regular Canadian flying route. From Herschel Island he would touch Point Barrow, Alaska, where Amundsen and Nobile flew in the Italian balloon, Norge, and where the late Carl Ben Eielson flew by plane.

Aviation experts, studying the possibilities of the Siberian route, found that from Spitzbergen, hopping off place of polar explorers, the Lindberghs could fly down to Norway or northern Russia, and thence start the 5,000-mile overland stage of their journey. The maps show lots of water, lots of swamps, lots of mountains.

May Follow Siberian Railway.

Lindbergh might choose to follow the Transsiberian Railway that connects western Russia with the Pacific coast down toward China. There are landing fields all along the railway. Lindbergh, by arranging in advance, could have fuel cached at the nearest water point to a landing field.

Lindbergh said that the question of a suitable fueling station was one big problem regarding a Siberian flight. The Government experts thought the landings themselves would be more of a problem. They did not believe at first that he could be considering a flight across Asia in a seaplane. When Lindbergh confirmed his consideration, one commented:

"Well, he's Lindbergh. It looks hard, but if he starts he ought to make it."

Lindbergh made a number of visits yesterday. He saw Undersecretary of State W. R. Castle, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young and others. He intended to fly back to New York last night, but could not get ready in time, so decided to remain here.

The Japanese government yesterday gave formal assurance that the Lindberghs would be welcome there. It is understood Lindbergh has made inquiries in several countries over which he might fly, and has received favorable replies in all instances.

Manufacturer Leaves $2,286,417.

Branford, Conn., June 11 (A.P.).—Egbert C. Fuller, retired manufacturer of bookbinding machinery, who died March 5, left an estate valued at $2,286,417, according to the inventory filed today. The will provides that $1,500,000 of the estate be used in an effort to control cancer and to alleviate suffering from the disease.

LACK OF OXYGEN, FAULTY DIET BELIEVED CAUSES OF INSANITY

(changes in coagulation) and electric potentials. In view of its newness it seems desirable to bring before this group a survey of the field.

"Among such reactions may be mentioned electric potential, oxidation-reduction, aggregation and dispersion, hydration and dehydration, sodium-potassium and calcium-potassium ratios. Too great a shift from equilibrium in any of these systems is certain to be attended with manifestations of disordered function of the brain.

"Iron and other metallic substances, essential catalysts for the utilization of oxygen, are found in considerable quantities in the cerebral cortex (the master brain).

"The effects of known deficiencies in oxygenation of the brain are often striking. These mental phenomena can often be banished abruptly by supplying an abundance of oxygen to the brain.

"Chemical examination of the brain in cases of dementia praecox has indicated deficiencies in neutral sulphur and in catalytic iron, both of which findings are of importance in indicating inherent deficiencies in oxidative processes.

"In a few cases showing catatonic symptoms, I have observed a rather marked deficiency in the reaction for catalytic iron in the deepest layers of the frontal cortex, while the other layers were comparatively normal.

Cause Is Unknown as Yet.

"Whether there is a dietary deficiency (meats, iron) or whether some toxic substances are formed in the intestinal tract (amides, cyanides) or whether emotionally restricted respiratory exchange leads to suboxidation, it is impossible to state. Nevertheless, it is enough to work with and observe that we are powerless as yet to interrupt."

The purpose of the American Medical Association to advise food manufacturers and the public of values of the highly exploited scientific discoveries in food was explained to the section on pharmacology and therapeutics by Morris Fishbein, M. D., editor of the journal of the association.

"Manufacturers and purveyors of food," he said, "have apparently an ethical point of view as high as that of any professional group in the country. It is only the manufacturer of a specialty on the border line between the food and drug field whose existence depends on the promotion of a single food, who hesitates in modifying the claims that are made. Certain products have reached the point where the committee on foods of the American Medical Association finds it necessary to publish statements of rejection and such statements will no doubt appear in the near future.

Health Food Claims Studied.

"Four hundred and fifty-five individual products have been submitted and of these 111 have been accepted and some 340 are pending."

Special attention is given to claims of health foods for babies and invalids, to vitamins, to irradiation with ultraviolet light, and character of advertising.

"The American people are given to all or nothing policies in what they do for health," Dr. Fisherbein said. "If they are told the consumption of a certain amount of orange juice is healthful, they are likely to drink so much orange juice as to upset the digestion and to make impossible the taking of additional necessary food substances. It must be realized that the human being can take not more than 6,000 calories per day, that the average man eats 4,000 and that probably 3,000 are sufficient."

X-Ray Progress Is Described.

Some ways in which surgeons can reconstruct faces disfigured by operations for certain types of cancer were described by Gordon B. New and Fred Z. Havens, of the Mayo Clinic.

Constantly developing use of X-rays were illustrated by Dr. Orville Barbour, of Peoria, Ill., in a treatment which relieves obstructions in the lower opening of the stomach of newborn infants. This relief was discovered by accident. X-rays were turned on a baby to photograph this portion of its stomach, and to the surprise of the operators, the obstruction cleared up.

Chronic underfeeding or malnutrition may be the insidious cause of curvature of the spine for which there is no other explanation, said Eben J. Carey, M. D., of Marquette University School of Medicine, Milwaukee.

Officers Are Elected.

Dr. Edward Henry Cary, of Dallas, Tex., was chosen president-elect of the Medical Association today.

Dr. Cary, who is emeritus dean of Baylor University College of Medicine, will assume office at the next annual meeting of the association.

Dr. George C. Yeager, Philadelphia, was elected vice president. All other general officers were reelected. The only contest was for vice speaker of the house of delegates. Dr. Albert E. Bulson, Fort Wayne, Ind., was reelected over Dr. John A. Card, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

VATICAN PREPARES ANSWER TO ITALY

Holy See Reasserts Right to Supervise Clubs of Action Society.

Rome, June 11 (A.P.).—The Vatican's reply to the Italian government's note was in preparation today, as the Holy See reasserted its right to control over the Catholic Action Society.

Osservatore Romano, the newspaper through which the Vatican makes public announcements, declared that powers of general supervision over Catholic Action remain with the Vatican and "the holy father in person."

This declaration apparently was made to quiet reports that, because of the opposition of the Italian government, the Vatican had fundamentally changed its attitude in regard to the relationship between itself and Catholic Action.

The situation so far as the controversy between the Holy See and the government was this: In Italian quarters there was reasonable optimism that an accord would be reached; at the Vatican a more grave view was expressed.

An incident today, wholly within the church organization but bearing on the controversy, was reported to have caused the Pope considerable displeasure.

Bishop Luigi Cossio, of Loreto, famous center of pilgrimages, apparently was a victim of mistaken interpretation of the Pope's recent order that Catholic Action was under the direction of the bishops. Believing this to mean that he had full charge of this work in his diocese, the bishop dissolved all Catholic associations—thus going farther than the government in regard to the organization. Bishop Cossio, who spent several years in Washington as auditor of the papal delegation, is widely known in America.

When the Vatican's reply to the government's note will be delivered remained uncertain tonight. Both parties to the controversy considered the negotiations to be well under way and agreed, also, that final settlement would be slow and difficult.

Under the papal policy toward Catholic Action announced in Osservatore Romano, diocesan bishops have more direct charge of branches of the society than in the past, but the general supervision remains with the Vatican.

Police Probing Theft Of Checks in Mail Box

Montgomery County police are investigating the theft of letters containing checks totaling $79.01 from the mail box of the home of Mrs. John L. Martin, 6 Grafton street, Chevy Chase, Md. The empty envelopes were found on the street several blocks away, with the ends torn off and the checks extracted.

The checks were made out to tradespeople in Washington and Maryland, and were signed "Emma K. Frank." The letters were extracted from the mail box at the Martin home, where they had been placed to await the mailman's collection. County Policeman Windsor C. Poole, of the Bethesda substation, is investigating.

Prince Georges Girl Fractures Leg in Fall

Eugenia Hepburn will celebrate her fifteenth birthday anniversary Sunday, just as she had planned, but the scene will be laid in Providence Hospital and not in her home at Brentwood, Md.

The girl, the daughter of Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, of the Prince Georges County police force, was playing near her home last night when she fell and fractured her leg. She is a seventh grade student at St. James School.

Sousa, After 50 Years, To Lead Yorktown Band

Richmond, Va., June 11 (A.P.).—Fifty years ago, at the Yorktown centennial celebration, one of America's youngest conductors and composers led the Marine Band in a grand fantasia prepared for the occasion.

Officials of the Yorktown sesquicentennial celebration, to be observed next February, today announced that the same leader had been invited to serve as guest conductor of the Marine Band on this occasion. He is John Philip Sousa.

The question of what project should be adopted by the Fairfax County Red Cross for the next year, which begins July 1, was discussed at a meeting of the executive committee yesterday in the county health office at Fairfax, with Saddie James, national field representative of the Red Cross, who has charge of the Virginia Chapter, and Miss Dougal, of the National Red Cross headquarters in Washington.

On July 1 the county chapter's financial responsibility for part of the salary of the county health nurse will end. During the past two years the chapter, through its several branches, has contributed $1,000 a year toward the cost of the Fairfax County health unit. A new plan of financing the health unit will be placed in operation at the beginning of the State's fiscal year on July 1. Under this plan the cost of the health unit will be divided only between the State and county, the State paying the major portion of what was formerly donated by private contributions.

The question whether the chapter should sponsor work with dietetics through a series of lectures to be given in the schools and to other organized units by a representative from the national headquarters was considered. Several members of the executive committee asked whether such a project in the county would overlap with the work being done in the county schools by Miss Sara E. Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent.

A committee was appointed by the president, Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, of Herndon, to confer with the head dietitian of the National Red Cross to ascertain the exact nature of the work. This committee includes Mrs. John Warnock Echols, of Vienna, chairman; Mrs. George R. E. Tuberville, of Centerville; Mrs. William J. Cleveland, of Seminary; Mrs. John W. Brookfield, of Springfield; Miss Sara Thomas, of Fairfax, and Mrs. Lynn.

Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse, pointed out to the committee the necessity for a county emergency closet with sick room supplies available for the loan or gift to the poor. She stated that the health club formed by the graduates of a nursing class conducted by her at Vienna and the Herndon nursing class have taken as their projects for this year the furnishing of such a closet. They will endeavor to raise the necessary fund from benefit entertainments, card parties and dinners to be given in the various communities. At their meetings they will make bandages and other sick-room supplies.

The chapter indorsed this project by authorizing the purchase of a wheel chair for the closet and a second chair was donated by Mrs. W. J. Cleveland. The chapter was advised to establish these closets as a series of local emergency closets rather than concentrating all of the supplies at a central point, such as Fairfax.

Dr. A. L. Carson, who has recently taken charge of the county health unit, was introduced to the committee and made a short address concerning health work.

The congregation of the Church of the Brethern at Oakton has elected four new deacons, who will be installed at the next quarterly meeting of the congregation. The new deacons are Jesse Cornell, of Dranesville; Ben Wakeman, of Rosslyn; Levi Miller, of Oakton, and Anderson Taylor, of Baileys Cross Roads. Miss Virginia Showalter, Miss Irene Moser and Miss Frances Myers have been elected as delegates from the church to the State Sunday School Association convention which is being held in Harrisonburg this week-end.

The Herndon Council, No. 25, Daughters of America, at its meeting in Wilkins Hall in Herndon, elected the following officers for the ensuing term: Councilor, Bessie Coleman; associate councilor, Iva Harrison; vice councilor, Maude Doores; associate councilor, Clara Duke; recording secretary, Mary Hurst; assistant recording secretary, Clara Holtsclaw; financial secretary, Lula Kirkpatrick; treasurer, Ada Kirkpatrick; warden, Herbert Powell; conductor, Cora Hurst; inside sentinel, Lula Cooper; outside sentinel, Glenna Mae Sibold and 18-month trustee, Cora Hurst. Mrs. Catherine Leigh, of Kenmore Council, was appointed deputy of the Herndon Council. Mary Hurst has been appointed by the State board of officers as chairman of the State law committee of the Daughters of America.

The Girls' Auxiliary of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will give a supper this evening in the [illegible] business meeting will follow the supper.

The Women's Club of Falls Church will meet today. A picnic lunch will be served at noon.

Two abandoned schoolhouses in Lee Magisterial District of Fairfax County will be auctioned off to the highest bidder today. The first sale will be the Belle Air School House, with one acre of land, to be sold at the school at 3:30 o'clock and the new Oak Grove School, with two acres of ground, will be sold at 2 o'clock. District School Trustee Dr. F. M. Brooks and county superintendent of schools, W. T. Woodson, will have charge of the sales.

Today is the last day on which applications can be filed for rural mail carriers out of the Lorton Postoffice. The applicants must live in the territory served by that office.

ARLINGTON OPPOSES NEW DISTRICT ORDER

Gloth Wants Capital Police and Firemen to Retain Homes in County.

In an effort to retain as citizens of Arlington County member of the police and fire departments of the District of Columbia, Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth yesterday made public a letter he addressed to Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner.

On January 1, 1928, an order was published stating that members of the two forces mentioned would not be allowed to reside in Arlington County. Previously a number of policemen and firemen had already made their residences in the county and were not requierd to observe the new ruling. Now, however, a number of the men are receiving instructions to change their places of residence and move to the District.

The letter from Attorney Gloth reads as follows:

"I am informed that certain members of the Police Department and the Fire Department are receiving instructions to change their residence from Arlington County, Virginia, to the District of Columbia. I assume that the reason for such action is due to the fact that it is the desire of the departments to have their employes close to their places of employment.

"Arlington County, as you know, is very accessible to the District of Columbia, and in many instances, much more accessible to the center of the city than many points within the District.

"A great many of the men affected have been residents of this county for a long time and are useful and valuable citizens. We are most anxious to have home owners in this county who are persons regularly employed in the District of Columbia, and it seems that a hardship is being worked on this county by the officials of the District of Columbia in requesting members of the fire department and police department to withdraw their citizenship from this county.

"I trust that some arrangement can be made whereby members of these departments can be permitted to retain their homes and their citizenship in Virginia. Without exception, these employes have been most useful citizens.

GEORGETOWN PREP GRADUATION HELD

Alumnus Warns Class of Peril to Society in Exaggerated Individualism.

Talking as one "old grad" to another, John Edward Laughlin, jr., assistant professor at Harvard University, first graduate of the school to return as speaker at a commencement, yesterday told the graduating class at Georgetown Preparatory School that exaggerated individualism reacts against the good of society. He urged the young men to remember that they are members of a big family and it is their duty to share in the improvement of the family.

Mr. Laughlin was graduated from the preparatory school in 1923, later being graduated from Georgetown University and Harvard University Law School, where he has been assistant to Prof. Joseph Beale, author of "Marriage and the Domicile" and "Conflict of Laws," in which he was coauthor.

The Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, told the graduating class that education is not merely a means to earn a living, but an instruction in how to live. He conferred the diplomas and certificates and the medals and premiums, assisted by the Rev. Robert E. Lloyd, headmaster of the school.

The valedictory was given by Robert Emmet Spalding and the salutatory by Francis Kerwick Cole. Honor awards were announced as follows: Robert Emmet Spalding, medal for highest average class standing of year; Francis K. Cole, the Henry Walters Medal; George Emory Potter, the O'Reilly Elocution Medal, and Philip A. Tumulty, son of Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, the George E. Hamilton Medal for general excellence.

Class officers are: Higinio Charles Fanjul, president; Philip Anthony Tumulty, vice president; George Emory Potter, secretary, and Joseph Theodore Schmidt, treasurer.

Diplomas were awarded to the following: Thomas Philip Campbell, John Francis Sannon, jr., Francis Kerwick Cole, Martin Henry Dumler, Higinio Charles Fanjul, Llewellyn Pugh Haden, Richard James Keekin, Hugh Gerard Koch, John Jessup LaPlante, Charles William McFadden, Philip Michael Murphy, John Regis Nyhoff, Lawrence John O'Brien, Thomas Aloysius O'Callaghan, Stuart Philip O'Malley, Charles Lee O'Neill, Thomas O'Toole, George Povey Parton, George Emory Potter, Austin Joseph Powell, Joseph Theodore Schmidt, Francis Joseph Schneider, William Henry Schroder, John Shields, Joseph Vincent Shields, Robert Emmet Spalding, Francis Farron Talbot, Philip Anthony Tumulty.

Butler Doubts War Debt Will Be Paid

Must Be Charged to Profit and Loss, He Asserts in Paris Speech.

Paris, June 11 (A.P.).—Asserting the debts of the World War must be charged to profit and loss, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, today told members of the American Club at a luncheon that the world needed men who would take a constructive lead in the present economic and social crisis.

All that has been done toward seeking a solution for the present situation, he said, was to try to find somebody to pay the cost of the World War. "We might as well try to find somebody to pay the cost of operating the sun," he added. "It can't be done."

Before the luncheon the college president had been received by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand. Dr. Butler, in his address, described as childish previous efforts to alleviate the world's troubles, and added they were of a nature calculated to cause amusement in Soviet Russia.

Soviet Party Visits Virginia Orchards

American Methods May Be Adopted by Russia in 5-Year Program.

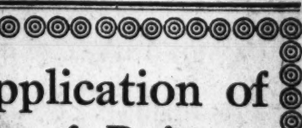

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 11.—Agents of Amtorg Trading Corporation, New York, have been here this week visiting numerous apple orchards and apple storage and by-product plants, gathering first-hand information, which they said probably would be studied by officials of the Russian Soviet Republic Board fashioning the five-year agricultural program of that nation.

Although Russian apples already are coming into competition with Virginia fruit in English and continental markets, the inquirers were given considerable information and unrestricted opportunities to visit orchards and product plants.

In the party were G. T. Kosilof, vice president of the Amtorg Corporation, and wife, and William Perepal, an official of the company.

Three Sworn In For School Board

Johnson, Learned and Mrs. Doyle Reappointed to Serve Until 1934.

Three members of the Board of Education, whose terms expire at the end of this month, were sworn in yesterday to serve new terms of three years each.

They are Dr. J. Haden Johnson, Dr. H. B. Learned, president of the board, and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle. Dr. Johnson has served as a board member continuously for fifteen years. Dr. Learned is entering his twelfth year of service. His service has not been continuous, as he resigned in December, 1921, and was reappointed July, 1925.

Mrs. Doyle is entering her fourth year as a board member. Dr. Learned became president of the board after the death of Dr. Charles F. Carusi. Other members of the board, whose service continues, are Daniel C. Roper, recently appointed; Henry Gilligan, Dr. Abram Simon, the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett, Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith and Mrs. Mary McNeil.

Handcuffed Five Hours, Man Satisfied They Fit

New York, June 11 (U.P.).—Never again will W. Agustus Shipley try on a pair of handcuffs to see if they fit.

"These were on Judd Gray when he was taken to Sing Sing," he was telling a friend.

"Why don't you put them on and see how they fit?" the friend suggested.

W. Agustus Shipley did.

Five hours later a locksmith managed to pry him out of them. Shipley had forgotten he didn't have a key.

Women Motorists Plunge Off Bridge

Victims Escape Death, One With Broken Leg; Other Is Injured.

Two colored women in an automobile last night crashed through a guard rail on the Woodside Bridge over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, at Grace Church road, and plunged 35 feet to the rails below and escaped death, one with a broken leg and the other with injuries on the leg.

Annie Berkley, driver of the car, who lives at Linden, Md., had her leg broken, while a passenger, Elsie Pumphrey, of Wheaton, Md., was badly cut on the leg. The car, a heavy sedan, was almost completely demolished. The women were taken to the office of Dr. W. B. Haynes, of Silver Spring, who gave them first aid, and then sent them to Freedman's Hospital.

Corpl. Roy Snyder, of the Silver Spring substation, Montgomery County police, investigated. He reported that the car failed to make a sharp turn, and crashed through the wooden railing.

Marylanders Get Vast Estate Share

Four Cumberland Heirs Notified of Bequests in Wendel Will.

Cumberland, Md., June 11 (A.P.).—Four Cumberland residents have been notified by John W. Davis, New York attorney, that they have been listed as heirs to the Wendel estate. They were sent the necessary documents to be filled out and returned to Mr. Davis.

Mrs. C. B. Keller, Darwin D. Trexler, George V. Trexler and Raymond K. Trexler, children of Mrs. Alice Wendel, of Terra Alta, W. Va., were those notified.

The Wendel estate, left by Miss Ella Wendel, last of the direct family, was estimated at close to $150,000,000. Miss Wendel died several weeks ago in her New York home.

Mr. Davis, one-time Democratic presidential nominee, is one of the attorneys retained to settle the estate.

Of course I've switched to CAMELS

You don't have to look beyond your own intimate circle to realize what has happened.

Everywhere you see evidence of a great country-wide switch to Camels.

That is because the new Humidor Pack performs a real new service for the smoker.

Throughout the nation, literally millions of people have found by actual test that the new air-sealed, sanitary package of moisture-proof Cellophane not only keeps out dust and germs, but also keeps in the rich, mild flavor of the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended.

To show their real appreciation of the Humidor Pack Camel smokers from all parts of the country write letters telling the advantages of this scientific new wrapping.

Women tell us they carry Camels in the Humidor Pack in their handbags without having them absorb powder and perfume odors. Workingmen say this moisture-proof wrapping protects their cigarettes from perspiration and pocket dust. Sailors are enthusiastic because the damp salt air does not reach Humidor-packed Camels.

All real benefits of course, but the chief fact that is causing this great nation-wide swing to Camels is the protection which this air-sealed wrapping gives to the choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos of which Camel cigarettes are blended.

No peppery dust to irritate the membrane; no dried-out tobacco to burn the tongue or sear the throat. Just the fresh, cool mildness of perfectly conditioned tobacco.

Switch to Camels for one day, then quit them—if you can.

Dr. J. W. Bird, of Sandy Spring, has been reelected president of the league. Other officers are Walter B. Armstrong, Cabin John Park, vice president; George W. Bids on Rock Creek Boulevard Opened Maryland and District Commission Receives 14 Road Offers.

Fourteen bids were opened last night by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. They were for the paving of the first stretch of the Rock Creek Park boulevard from Beach drive, at the District line, to the East-West highway at Jones Mill road.

The bids were asked for two types of road construction, 8-inch macadam and 7-inch concrete, the surfacing to match the park roads in the District section. Thomas, Bennett & Hunter, of Westminster, Md., presented the low bid of $40,084.94 on the macadam construction, and Warren F. Brenzier, of Washington, the low bid of $46,112.83 for the concrete construction. The contract will be awarded later after the commission's engineers have studied the bids.

Irving G. Root, chief engineer of the commission, presented a report on illegal signs in the metropolitan area of Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. His survey showed the location of every sign which has been constructed without a building permit since the adoption of the park and planning act three and a half years ago, at which time a survey of all existing signs was made. All signs found to have been erected since that time which have not had a building permit are said to be illegal. The report was referred to J. Bond Smith, attorney for the commission, for action.

STARR FAITHFUL HELD SLAIN TO SILENCE HER IN LAWSUIT

stay in the cremation of the body of the 25-year-old beauty cast up on Long Beach, Long Island, on Monday.

Edwards halted the proceedings just as the body was to be sent to the crematory. He said he had one more witness whom he wanted to identify the victim. He expected the identification to shed light on Miss Faithfull's movements prior to her death some time after she disappeared from her New York home last Friday. He said the witness had seen the girl "at a time and place important to the investigation."

The shift in cremation plans was preceded by Edwards' statement that the information at hand concerning the girl's death would be handed, with a torn book with silver clasps, to the jury tomorrow. The book is a diary containing fragments of the life and experiences of Miss Faithfull.

Edwards, convinced the young beauty was slain by drowning, said the diary strengthened his theory. It contains names of persons socially and politically prominent. He did not say these persons were suspects in the girl's death.

"The politician mentioned since the investigation started is not out of the picture by any means," he said, however. "We have evidence he had a motive for wishing her out of the way."

Meanwhile Edwards prepared to question the persons he described as political and social leaders. Several prominent persons would have been "happier if the girl were dead," the district attorney said. "I will trace the movements of every one of them before we are through."

The investigation also spread to England. Scotland Yard was requested by cable to ask Dr. G. Jameson Carr, surgeon of the liner Franconia, about his acquaintanceship with the girl. It was made clear he was not under suspicion.

Boston, June 11 (U.P.).—Francis P. Hamlin, a clerk employed by the Cunard Steamship Lines and a close friend of Miss Starr Faithfull, left here today for New York, it was learned tonight.

Though no informatic as to why Hamlin departed for New York was obtained at his home in Dedham, it was reported at police headquarters here that he had received a telephone call from New York this morning.

Hamlin was questioned yesterday by District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards, of Nassau County, New York, and was said to have revealed some "very important information."

Following the questioning, Hamlin issued a statement in which he said he told Edwards, "I would be glad to go to New York if at any time he needed me."

CHILD, 2, BURNED FATALLY BY MATCH

yesterday afternoon eluded watchful eyes and after procuring a handful of the forbidden articles, slipped out into the side yard.

Giggling with delight as the sulphur tips crackled when rubbed against a piece of stone, the two children lit match after match, until the supply ran low.

The last match was struck. For a time it flared brightly, but was discarded with the rest when the flame disappeared.

As it was thrown to the ground the tip brushed the side of Lois' flimsy dress. Only for a second, but long enough for a spark to catch in the thin material.

Suddenly the child's clothes burst into flame. She ran screaming into the house. Mrs. Thompson, who was in a room on the second floor, heard the child's cries and rushed to her aid.

A heavy blanket was thrown about her body, smothering the blaze, and Lois was taken to Providence Hospital in a neighbor's automobile.

Doctors at the institution worked in vain to save the child's life. She was pronounced dead at 6:45 o'clock, less than four hours after being admitted.

Policeman Pumphrey, on duty at the time of the accident, was netified and hurried to the hospital. He collapsed when told his daughter was dead.

Robert, who was left at home, couldn't understand "why sister didn't come back to play."

MacDONALD REGIME FACING NEW DEFEAT

nically in office pending the verdict of the voters.

Liberals and Laborites alike are making every effort to avert a crisis. The belief is that MacDonald would go far to meet the views of Lloyd George but is prevented by Snowden, who is unwilling to make the slightest concession. A possible way out would be for the prime minister to throw his chancellor of the exchequer overboard, but this is believed to be most unlikely.

In his Edinburgh speech Lloyd George pleaded with the government to accept the amendment "in substance—I am not talking about the form"—and made other references to the crisis which were interpreted by his hearers as expressing the hope the MacDonald government would carry on even if defeated.

The Liberal leader, however, washed his hands of anything that may happen in next Tuesday's debate.

"I'm told that if we insist the government will thrown in their hand," he said. "If they do, it's their responsibility."

The Liberals, he said, were in the position of a group whose sole means of inforcing its demands is "capital punishment," the infliction of a vital stroke in the form of a vote in Commons which would cut short the government's life.

"There are two objections to that," he asserted. "You can't inflict capital punishment for minor offenses, and you can inflict it only once for any offense."

Although it is conceded that the last thing on earth Lloyd George wants is a general election at this time, observers believe he can make material retraction from his present position on the land tax amendment.

MacDonald is believed to be almost equally lacking in enthusiasm for an election, yet seems to be being driven toward one by the force of circumstances.

It is the very absurdity of Liberals and Laborites together bringing about an election that neither wants, which makes commentators feel—despite all present evidence to the contrary—that some way out will be found by the leaders of the two parties over the week end, and that this crisis will blow over as have many others.

Injunction Asked In Club Bond Plan

Attorney Hits Proposal of University Group to Issue $400,000.

Clarence W. DeKnight, Washington attorney, yesterday filed suit against the University Club Building Co., whose property is located at Fifteenth and I streets northwest, in Corporation Court, Alexandria, seeking to enjoin the firm from issuing $400,000 bonds as authorized last month.

The plaintiff seeks a fair market value for the 24 shares of stock held by him and states that before any transfer of assets is made or bonds issued, he and the other stockholders are entitled to a fair valuation of their holdings.

According to the bill the company leased the downtown building on January 1, 1913, for a period of 99 years. Outstanding bonds are said to be $75,000 and the assessed valuation of the property is placed at $497,960.

NEW MOTOR TAXES LOOM FOR DISTRICT

Federal appropriation for the upkeep of the National Capital, the committee has gone more deeply into the subject than it had been expected it would. What it will recommend about the Federal appropriation still is undecided. It may recommend a fixed proportion of the total District appropriations, or a fixed sum, or work out a new basis the backbone of which would be a sliding scale varying with conditions.

The committee's statement was made public, Mr. Mapes said, so that the proposals could be publicly discussed and the committee would receive public reaction to the plan. The statement follows:

"The committee has tentatively agreed, subject to ultimate action of the committee at a later meeting, as follows:

"1. To prepare and report bills to the House of Representatives to increase the gas tax in the District from 2 cents to 4 cents per gallon, to provide for a motor vehicle license tax based upon the weight of the car, and to enact an inheritance tax law.

"2 To recommend that thorough consideration be given to the question of adopting an income tax law for the District as a substitute for the present intangible personal property tax.

"3. To recommend that the legislative committee of the House of Representatives on the District of Columbia, prepare and that Congress pass, legislation changing the present method of taxing public utilities in the District on gross receipts and gross earnings to an ad valorem basis, repealing the existing law exempting from taxation certain railroad property in the District and to provide for a tax for the privilege of exercising corporate franchises within the District.

"The fixing of the amount to be contributed by the Federal Government to the District Government was reserved to a later meeting of the committee.

"The committee will make a full, complete and detailed report of its findings and conclusions to the House of Representatives upon the reconvening of Congress."

THE WORLD'S STEAM ROLLER.

Ever since the International Chamber of Commerce held its meeting in Washington last month the public has wondered why it completely ignored the economic menace of communism. When an assembly of the world's leading business men comes together it is expected to concentrate its attention on the most important economic issues of the day. Yet Soviet dumping on the already demoralized world market was neglected while the delegates indulged in idle chatter about tariffs and cancellation of war debts. Why?

Georges Theunis, former president of the international chamber, has let the cat out of the bag. The delegates did not condemn Russia, he says, because many of them are carrying on a profitable trade with that country. They did not fail to recognize the inherent dangers in strengthening the Soviet for its economic war, but they were unwilling to forego the temporary profits which that trade is bringing. Mr. Theunis' indictment of these short-sighted capitalists recalls the prediction of Lenin that capitalism would cut its own throat for temporary profits.

The inconsistency of nurturing communism by trade and expert advice in order that it may tear down the system upon which civilization rests is too glaring for comment. Business men who are reaping large profits by selling obsolete machinery and defective goods to the Soviet do not hesitate to condemn the slavery, the atheism, the destruction of the family and the annihilation of individuality which communism entails. But they excuse themselves on the ground that if they didn't sell to the Soviet some one else would.

There is a lot of talk about helping the poor, down-trodden Russian people. If communism means the destruction of freedom of religion and all other bases of free civilization it is a curse to the Russian people as well as to the rest of the world. The Russian people have never embraced communism. It has been forced down their throats by a minority consisting of 2 per cent of the population. In the language of Mr. Theunis, "this minority takes advantage of an inconceivable apathy of the people and of a strength based on the most abominable terror that the world has ever seen, and spreads only misery, suffering and the direst privations. Appeasing despair by fallacious promises, the Soviets profit by the misery they have created, in order to spread it among the other peoples, among us, among you."

Nevertheless, what Russia does within the Russian borders is its own business. The United States and other nations should be concerned only with protecting their people and their institutions. The frantic effort of the red conspirators to build up an economic machine that can destroy capitalism will fail without the aid of foreign capital, foreign markets and expert advice from foreigners. By supplying all these necessary elements to the dictatorship that holds the Russian people in its grip the greedy commercial interests of free nations are making it possible for the Moscow regime to weld the resources and man power of Russia into a monstrous machine that can steam-roller the world.

VERMONT'S RICH FARMS.

Any one who has the idea that agriculture in New England is dying out would be surprised upon investigation of the facts. Vermont used to raise turkeys and drive the flocks over the hills to Boston, more than 100 miles away. Today fast milk trains carry 60 per cent of Boston's milk supply every day from the Green Mountains. Vermont farming produces results that amaze persons who have heard more about her abandoned farms than about the ones fitted with the latest electrical equipment.

The State's farm products are valued at $100,000,000 a year. The number of farms in Vermont has decreased in the last ten years, but agricultural production has increased; and if that is not enough to establish the quality of her farmers let it be known that Vermont ranks first in New England and third among all the States in the yield of corn per acre. In the production of the six staple cereal crops the yield in Vermont is double the average for the country.

Vermont produces annually over $3,000,000 worth of maple sugar and syrup, supplies seed potatoes to many sections, and boasts the largest privately owned apple orchard in the world. But the dairy industry is the backbone of agriculture in Vermont. The 250,000 cows of the State supply annually 1,250,000,000 pounds of milk, a large percentage of which is marketed in fluid form. There are more cows per farm in Vermont than in any other State in the Union.

The farmers of Vermont have suffered from the universally low prices for agricultural products, but Gov. Wilson says the State has probably felt this less than any other, owing to wide diversification. Vermont has distinct advantages for the farmer. Crop failures are virtually unknown, and the great cities of the Eastern seaboard are within easy reach. A lot of Vermont stands up on edge, but her valleys and hillsides are rich, and it must be admitted that her farmers know how to harvest profits from them.

ELECTRIC POWER RATES.

Modification of the consent decree which governs rates paid by the people of Washington for electric power is unquestionably in the public interest. The Public Utilities Commission is to be commended for its decisive action. If the Potomac Electric Power Co. is unwilling to accept the new sliding scale for division of excessive profits it may petition the courts to intervene. But it seems improbable that the present rate structure can be maintained.

Existing rates for electric power in Washington compare very favorably with those of other cities. But the fact remains that for the last five years the company has been earning an average of 10 per cent on its investment. When any enterprise is given a monopoly for service to the public such profits must be considered "excessive and unreasonable." The reasonableness of the rate charged can not be measured by what other cities pay. Varying conditions make the same service cheaper in some localities. The rates of a utility which has an exclusive franchise can be properly measured only by a fair return on its investment.

The new order of the commission allows the company a fair profit. The public can not share the profits unless they amount to more than 7 per cent. If profits should amount to 8 per cent, one-half of the excess over 7 per cent would be applied to rate reductions. If profits should be larger than 8 per cent, a still greater portion of the excess would be turned back to the public. This will not deprive the company of the incentive to improve and extend its service and to operate at a high degree of efficiency. In view of the company's sound position, the new sliding scale seems to be wholly equitable and reasonable.

In modifying the sliding scale the commission has acted in accordance with law and the public interest. The company ought to save itself the expense of a protracted legal fight and capitalize upon the good will that a further reduction in rates would create.

SQUANDERING LIBERTY.

Dr. William John Cooper's address to the graduates of George Washington University was a timely reminder of this generation's tendency to undervalue constitutional liberties and guaranties. Youth is too often afflicted with a spendthrift attitude toward its heritage of political rights, and is too frequently "ready and willing to sweep away the constitutional guaranties of liberty."

Dr. Cooper, who is United States Commissioner of Education, refrained from using the eighteenth amendment as an illustration of how constitutional rights may be frittered away, because he feared that he might be understood to defend the use of intoxicants. Instead he chose the seventeenth amendment, providing for the popular election of senators. When the State Legislatures chose members of the upper branch of Congress they were usually distinguished and capable men. To secure election today candidates often resort to blatant demagogy and spend huge sums of money in questionable ways.

The electorate loses sight of the great national issues that Congress must decide. Senators promise to obtain the greatest possible benefits for the States they represent. To hold their places they outdo each other in framing and promoting local bills and sectional projects. In order to win support for their own schemes they must vote for similar nostrums proposed for the benefit of other sections, even though such votes are contrary to their best judgment. They are not senators of the United States in a real sense. Dr. Cooper's diagnosis confirms the general opinion that the Senate has sadly deteriorated since its members have been selected by popular election.

Tinkering with the Constitution seldom conserves the rights of the people or improves the quality of government. Too often amendments which are designed to preserve or extend the liberties of the people result only in confusion and frustration of the real intent of the people.

Assaults upon the freedom of the people are often sugar-coated. Dr. Cooper pointed out that many of those working for concentration of political power in Washington camouflage their efforts behind the most plausible causes. One conspicuous example is the maternity bill, seeking to impose a well-defined State function upon the Federal Government. This bill was lost in the last Congress. Citizens are constantly blinded in their support of such measures by the immediate advantages sought, without contemplating their destructive influence upon the fundamentals of government. If representative government and the rights of local autonomy are to be maintained inviolate the people must learn to weigh the fundamentals involved in constitutional or legislative changes rather than the immediate benefits proposed.

INTERNATIONAL WETS.

Surplus stocks of wine are stacked in the cellars of France like wheat in the bins of the American Farm Board. No less important personages than two cabinet ministers have welcomed to Paris the twelfth congress of the International League of Adversaries of Prohibition. Delegates from fourteen countries are in session to voice the evils attendant upon prohibition, and especially the loss of health and nourishment by persons who are denied good wines and beer.

The winemakers of France and the brewers of Germany meet in friendly accord that resembles a Chequers conference. The president of the Brewers Union journeyed to the French Capital to impress upon the already converted members of the league "the nutritive qualities of beer." French speakers will discourse upon the healthful advantages of imbibing vinous products in reasonable amounts. "Prohibition From the Ethical Point of View" will be expounded by the Abbe Dubacquie, of the Oenological Station at Bordeaux. The truly international character of the meeting and its campaign plans will be demonstrated by the president of the Swiss National League Against Prohibition, who is to discuss "The Question of Alcohol and the League of Nations."

Holding up the United States, of course, as the most horrible example, a league bulletin says: "Statistics, familiar to most Americans, have been gathered to show that thousands of young men and women, as well as older persons, are now drinking more than is good for them, simply because of the adventure attached to the methods which must be used to obtain contraband liquor."

One of the puzzles which these wets do not discuss is the fact that while antiprohibitionists harp upon the alleged oversupply of liquor in this country, they are also demanding that the Government shall open up the distilleries and breweries. If everybody, even children, is getting all the good liquor he craves, why should the wets worry?

Representative Dyer says that licensing of beer would add $1,000,000,000 to the income of the United States. Of course, that doesn't take into consideration how many millions would be lost to the bootleg industry.

"L'etat, c'est moi," said Louis XIV. But Gov. Horton of Tennessee was content with saying, when the House of Representatives refused to impeach him: "Tennessee has been saved."

A torpedo has been found floating on the Potomac. Might be one of those things the insurgents used in trying to scuttle the tariff bill.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., June 11.—Practically everything in the way of original records of the discovery, exploration and settlement of our country is in Europe. A great deal of colonial history is also located there. In Scandinavia and Iceland documents possibly exist relating to this country before the time of Columbus. Scholars report a vast amount of material in the archives of Spain, France and Holland concerning our early history that has never been carefully investigated. The Vatican is supposed to be another source of important material. London has been only partially examined.

All these original sources of the history of this country ought to be thoroughly explored by competent scholars. The new method of photographing documents on films so that they can be reproduced on a screen when wanted would seem to be an inexpensive method of making these ancient records available to students. This work might well be undertaken by the National Government, by a university, or some of the charitable foundations. A great mass of important documents is known to exist from the observations of those searching for facts concerning some specific event or individual life, but they have never been systematically studied. The whole record should be disclosed.

THE GOLD STANDARD

By SAMUEL RUSSELL.

The American dollar, by definition of law, is 25.8 grains of gold. This gold dollar is not a coin. It is the standard unit of valuation and accounting for the people and the Government of the United States.

The pound sterling is the British unit of valuation and accounting. The 20-shilling gold piece is the sovereign. The guinea is a sort of gentleman's pound of 21 shillings. The pound itself is not coined.

The Canadian dollar, by legal definition, is identical with that of the United States. It is likewise a unit of valuation and accounting. The Canadian dollar has never been coined either in gold or silver.

The troy ounce of gold is $20.67. This is not the worth or value of the ounce of gold. It is a statement of the number of dollar units in the ounce of gold.

Money, in the modern sense, is a flow. But this flow does not consist of the circulation of coins or currency. It is the current valuation of goods which are moving from production to consumption, and of work which is moving from consumption to production. The gold dollar unit is the measure for the credits and debts created by the trade in work and goods. Work is measured by hours and dollars. Goods are measured by pounds and dollars.

You can no more separate the modern conception of dollars from goods, wares, merchandise and work than you can separate the conception of pounds, gallons and bushels from the commodities which are measured by these terms.

The trade dollars which constitute the money flow are created by contract, of which the seller's end is a credit dollar and the buyer's end is a debt dollar.

The real function of finance is not the circulation of coins and currency, but the settlement and sinking of debts. The supply of currency for pocket money is a very small part of this function.

The corporeal conception of money must be eradicated from contemporary thinking, before the thought of the country can project a rationalized money system.

There can never be order in public and private affairs until the settlement of trade credits and debts into balances shall be made to synchronize with the transactions which create them.

In 1929 the bank debits reported from 141 cities amounted to $985,421,000,000. The bank debits of 3,000 cities and towns in the United States are not included in the foregoing aggregate.

This means that the dollar business done through the banks of the United States in 1929 may be taken as amounting to 1,000 billions of dollars.

The gold stock of the United States is put down at 4½ billion dollars, of which 2½ billions are held by and for the banks, 1⅔ billions by the Government, and one-third of a billion by the public. This gold may, in fact, be regarded as static in its relation to the tremendous volume of domestic bank transfers. The point of all this is that the banking system of the United States is a great gold unit bookkeeping, transfer, and accounting mechanism.

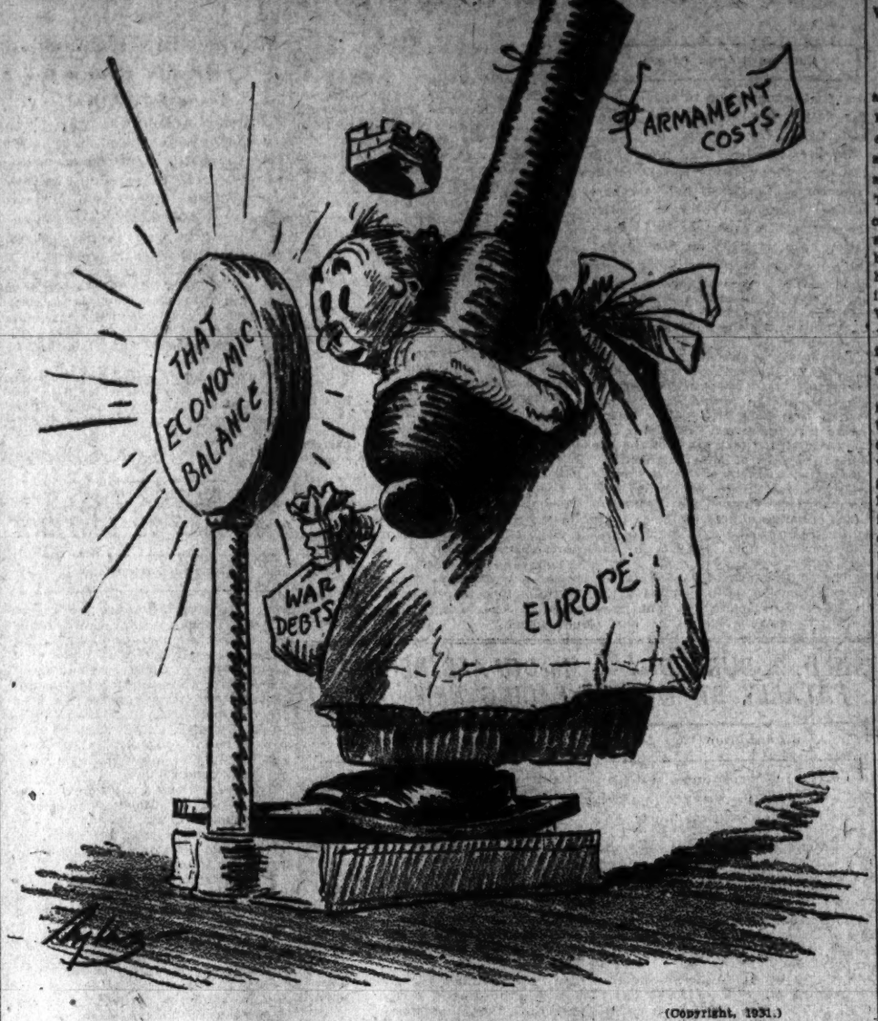

The actual cash of the country is made up of 4½ billions of coins and currency, of which there are about 1 billion dollars of greenbacks and bank notes, 2½ billion dollars of Federal Reserve notes, and less than a billion dollars of silver dollar, subsidiary, and minor coinage.

A comparison between the 1,000 billions of annual gold unit bank transfers and the less than 1 billion of circulating silver which we have found it convenient to use, gives a true picture of the relative utility of circulating silver coinage and gold unit bank accounting in the commerce of the United States. And we have not yet perfected the utility of our fiscal accounting mechanism. We are, however, at the head of the procession, and China, the last of the silver standard countries, is at the rear.

When the exchange value of silver in the domestic trade of China sinks to the gold value per weight unit of silver, China is de facto on the gold standard, notwithstanding the legal fiction and the pretension of economists to the contrary.

The people of India and China are awakening to the fact that silver is not the substance of riches, which means that the treasure market of the East is closing against silver. The indications are that the price of silver will be stabilized at 30 cents. At the present time silver is so cheap in China that the Chinaman will not take silver. He wants rice.

The silver problem of these days is a problem only to the silver mines and to the money brokers, the coin sweaters, and the misers of China.

There Is More Power to Drive the Wheels if You Don't Waste Steam Blowing the Whistle.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you are an ordinary person, with ordinary weaknesses and handicaps, it is possible for you to save a great deal of the nerve-energy you now waste, and thus increase your efficiency and endurance.

In order to do it, you must understand the nature of your subconscious mind.

You know, of course, that you have two minds—one with which you make decisions and give deliberate orders to your muscles, and another with which you dream and direct various habitual activities of your body "without thinking."

This second mind, the subconscious one, is the one that learns habits, good and bad, and dresses you, drives your car or leads you home while your conscious mind is worrying about the rent or something.

The point to remember is that it can and does take complete charge of your body when your conscious mind isn't attending to business.

Perhaps it is the only mind you had as a primitive. Certainly it makes you a much stronger animal when it takes charge.

For example, when fear or rage causes you to "lose your head" or be "out of your mind"—which means that your conscious mind has quit functioning—your subconscious mind directs your muscles and enables them to do feats of which you are normally incapable.

Men who quarrel much and fight often are seldom brave. They have learned the trick of surrendering to their subconscious minds—losing their tempers—and the frenzy of rage not only doubles their strength but makes them unconscious of hurt.

Surrendering to the subconscious mind is easy for them, for their conscious minds have little strength. The weaker your conscious mind, the more easily you can surrender to emotion.

That is precisely what happens when emotion overcomes you—your subconscious mind takes charge. And it "doubles your strength."

But if it gives you new strength, it takes a heavy toll. It increases your gland secretions to provide that strength, and thus it exhausts you.

When the emotion is gone, you are limp. If you haven't burned up the extra secretions by physical exertion, you are poisoned and sick. In any case you have wasted a lot of nerve-energy.

Constant emotional strain can make you an invalid. Learn to be calm, indifferent, amused, cheerful—restrain all emotion,, whether love, hate, fear, resentment, envy, enthusiasm—and a week will give you undreamed-of vitality.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

A National Economic Council.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mr. William Gibbs McAdoo, although he never has had the qualities that would make him an extremely popular figure, has the wealth of experience of business and government that earn respect for his suggestions. Speaking to a San Francisco audience, Mr. McAdoo has urged the establishment of a "Peace Industries Board," comparable to the War Industries Board, to stabilize industry and agriculture, preventing overproduction and consequent unemployment and waste.

With something of the liberal point of view of Woodrow Wilson toward the socialization of industry, but far more of hard-headed business sense than the War President had, McAdoo offers a coherent and workable plan for rationalizing the production and distribution system of the country.

He points out rightly that, despite the efficiency of production in many industries, the American economic order is mismanaged in the aggregate for lack of conscious planning from a wide perspective.

Since the collapse of the market in October, 1929, we have been shy of installment buying. Margins seemed to be installments gone mad.

Comes now Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, to the defense of installments. His department has looked into the matter and finds but 12 per cent of the $50,000,000,000 annual business of this country done on the installment plan. Inference: Monthly payments can hardly be the inhabitants of the woodpile.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

W. C. T. U. Declared to Be Unreasonable and Fanatical in Opposing Legalized Beer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If any person or group of individuals known to be opposed to the eighteenth amendment should publicly advocate the use of more water or any other harmless thing, the W. C. T. U., Antisaloon League and related organizations would strongly condemn and oppose it. This fact which has been demonstrated time and again has been most strikingly illustrated in the public statement issued by the W. C. T. U. on June 10, in which the proposal to legalize the manufacture and sale of beer is bitterly assailed.

I venture the assertion that there is not a reputable doctor in the United States who, if he is unprejudiced on the question of prohibition, would claim that the use of beer generally would be harmful to the health or morals of its users or that it is intoxicating. In order to produce the slightest intoxication from beer it is necessary to consume such a large quantity of it as to make it extremely objectionable to even the most ardent addict of strong drinks.

That no sound argument can be made against the proposal to allow the sale of beer is made very clear in the recent feeble statement of the W. C. T. U., in the attempt to prove by statistics that the amount of revenue which it is claimed the Government would receive from the sale of beer could not possibly be realized in the next fiscal year because Congress does not meet until December. This statement is on a par with most of the statements emanating from these fanatical dry organizations. Merely because they once opposed the objectionable saloon they will not listen to or reason with any group who are advocating a sane solution of an admittedly difficult and deplorable condition. And this they would do even if it were proved that there are now 100 gallons of intoxicating liquors consumed to every quart before prohibition.

New England Council Repudiates Report That Poverty Is Rampant.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Attention has been called to the editorial appearing in your issue of Monday, May 25, entitled, "Salem's Fine Example."

New Englanders will agree with Louis Adamic's favorable estimate of industrial conditions in Salem, and with your own opinion of the fine example set by the intelligent management of the textile mills referred to in that city, but they must disagree emphatically both with many of Mr. Adamic's statements about conditions in other New England communities and in New England as a whole and with your own unqualified repetition of them.

For instance, it can hardly be true that "in no part of the country is suffering due to unemployment more acute," when it is undeniably true that in New England there have been no such signs of distress as have been visible to the naked eye elsewhere. There has been unemployment in New England, of course, as indeed there has been everywhere. But to draw the inference that New England has suffered more acutely in the depression than has the rest of the country fails to check with facts.

We would appreciate anything which you may care to do to correct the impression created by your editorial that in New England "poverty was everywhere."

Lawyer Campbell Suggests That Guam Be Made a Penal Colony.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been reported that the Navy Department will abandon Guam as a naval base. It is suggested that consideration be given the thought of establishing there an island penal colony, to which confirmed criminals could be sent. Nothing would have a more deterrent effect upon the "repeater" or those advocating overthrow of this Government by force and violence or those who incite to riot in the prisons of this country than the knowledge that there is a place where they will be sent and where they will be separated from the slick criminal lawyer and pardon and parole boards.

CAESAR'S IDEA.

Old Caesar said that thinking men
Are dangerous to peace.
They like to toil with thoughts at night
When all the noises cease.
They peddle strange ideas round
About the neighborhood,
And they stir up endless trouble,
Which a dumbbell never would.

"Let me have men about me who are fat," old Caesar said.
"The comfortable fellows who can sleep when they're in bed;
I don't like lean and hungry men,
Who keep themselves in touch
With everything that's going on, because they think too much."

I think I know what Caesar meant.
The thinker speaks his mind,
And he would break with customs old
If better he could find,
But comfortable followers are those
Who, right or wrong,
Smile smugly on their leader and say, "Yes, sir," all day long.

MINERS ASK HOOVER FOR COAL MEETING

Lewis Cites Industry's Woes in Asking President to Call Relief Parley.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 11 (A.P.).—The executive board of the United Mine Worker of America today, through John L. Lewis, international president, asked President Hoover to convene a joint meeting of representatives of mine operators and coal miners, "for the purpose of mutually discussing the problems of the industry and finding a common basis understanding."

In a telegram to the President, the union official described the thousands of bituminous coal miners as "degraded to levels approximating serf labor," the plight of women and children as "inhuman," and the coal operators as "without leadership."

"The operators, the coal miners, coal mining communities and the press of this Nation," the appeal continued, "recognize the ills of the bituminous coal industry as being of such a cancerous nature that no self-aid can be expected from the industry's own initiative.

"The prevalent belief is, that only through the efforts and leadership of outside influence can a basis be reached for a correction of existing abuses.

"The bituminous coal industry needs no further investigation—the facts of this backward and ill-functioning industry are known to all who would trouble themselves to ascertain them.

"Already there has been too much palliative talk and insufficient action. The executive board of the United Mine Workers of America feels that the inhuman plight of the women and children, the insecurity of capital assets of the coal companies, the degradation of the men employed in the coal mines, all of which are breeding communism and anarchy, are of such serious moment that the Government of the United States can no longer pursue a passive policy."

The executive board said it had assurance that many representative coal operators would attend such a conference as requested and pledged its assistance in making the meeting "an effective agency in meeting the exigencies that demand such action."

Union officials said the executive board, which has been in session here this week, had discussed in detail conditions in the bituminous coal fields, where minor disorders have occurred recently.

"We feel," the message to the President concludes, "that the crisis is one of such vital importance, the degradations in the coal industry so far reaching, that the conference, when called, should not be delegated as a department matter, but should be sponsored and aided to the fullest extent possible by your office."

all available officers tonight. Meanwhile, R. A. Ireland, general manager of the Hanna Co., and Prosecutor Waddell, of Belmont County, announced they would go to Columbus tomorrow to ask Gov. George White for State aid unless the situation is under complete control by then.

Pittsburgh, June 11 (A.P.).—The tenth day of the coal strike in this area, including parts of Ohio and West Virginia, brought an announcement from the United Mine Workers that a conference would be sought with officials of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation with a view to reaching an agreement on wages that would end a strike of more than 1,000 men in five of the corporation's mines near Pittsburgh.

In West Virginia, more than 500 men employed in mines in the Shinnston district failed to report for work today, while four mines in the Bear Mountain section resumed operations after a strike of several days' duration. Van A. Bittner, official of the United Mine Workers, said the union had not issued a general strike call in the area, but that workers who quit their posts today did so of their own accord.

Bittner also said George H. Van Fleet and William Rodgers, Federal Department of Labor mediators who recently spent several days in the Monongahela field, had telegraphed him they would urge Secretary Doak to call a conference to discuss the ills of the coal industry.

Expedition Radioes Story of Progress

Geographic Society Told of Welcome Extended to Party in Kabul.

Kabul, isolated capital of Afghanistan, which has known three kings in as many years, has been reached by the Trans-Asia Expedition, according to a radio message received late yesterday by the National Geographic Society, which is cooperating in the expedition.

The party reports that the ambitious modern capital city which former King Amanullah had almost completed on the outskirts of Kabul before his visit to the United States in 1928, is now deserted. Governmental activities, as during past centuries, are being carried on in old Kabul.

Typical Eastern hospitality is marking the friendly attitude of the Afghan government toward the expedition, it was said. Only about a hundred miles now separates the expedition from the northwestern border of India.

to do anything to facilitate an army for such warfare."

His resignation left the question with Yung Kwai, the aged counselor of the legation, who again becomes charge d'affaires. The latter has held the position some sixteen or seventeen times, including periods during the regime of the dynasty. Now past 70, he has been attached to the legation since 1889.

Silent as to Future Course.

The retiring minister said he had been asked to return to Canton, but declined to indicate whether he would be a figure in that government now taking active issue with the Nanking regime.

Explaining the issue between Canton and Nanking, Dr. Wu said it was based on Cantonese demands that Chiang Kai-Shek resign. He discredited some contentions advanced by Cantonese sympathizers that Canton was being deprived of representation in the Nanking government.

The munitions and war supplies asked for by the Nanking government he described as a considerable order. It included some twenty airplanes, sixteen tons of powder and other war equipment. Under the embargo on arms to China, licenses must be obtained for export by application to the State Department through the Chinese Legation.

Deputies' Act Seen By Touring Mayors

Americans Go to Enghien-les-Bains After Visit to Chamber.

Enghien-les-Bains, France, June 11 (A.P.).—America's touring mayors, having watched the French political wheel revolve in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon, tonight came here ot witness other games of chance at the recently reopened casino.

At the chamber they have listened to a lively verbal skirmish over internal finances in which Paul Reymaud, the minister of colonies, worsted Leon Blum, the Socialist leader, amid laughter and applause from the right and center benches. Besides the debate they were impressed by the artistic beauty of the Palais Bourbon, where the chamber meets.

This evening there was a dinner here in the casino restaurant by the side of a lake. It was a relief from the torrid heat of Paris. Tomorrow they will visit La Malmaison, where Napoleon bade Josephine good-by; the Palace of Louis XIV and the Trianon Palace, dining at St. Germain-en-Laye.

Otto-Maria Betrothal Reports Bring Denial

Brussels, Belgium, June 11 (A.P.).—Reports from Rome to the effect that Archduke Otto of Austria was engaged to marry Princess Maria of Italy were denied today by Baron Gudemus, marshal of Otto's court.

COUP D'ETAT IN PERU HALTED BY ARRESTS

State of Siege Is Declared Throughout Country to Block Plot.

Lima, Peru, June 11 (A.P.).—The provisional government of David Samanez Ocampo, which was sworn in exactly three months ago after a series of revolutions in Peru, announced today it had put down a plot to overthrow the junta. The government decreed the reestablishment of a state of siege throughout the country.

A government bulletin announced arrest of 22 conspirators in a garage in Callao and 23 of their colleagues in Lima. The statement added that the junta authorities were acquainted with the revolutionary plans and had the situation under control.

From other sources it was learned that those arrested in the capital were secret service men during the regime of President Augusto de Leguia, whose administration was overthrown last August. These sources reported the Lima plotters had been sent to Callao, presumably on their way to confinement at San Lorenzo Isle.

The official decree stated authorities would strictly enforce martial law and, if necessary, would use firearms in checking demonstrations and was dispersing any groups of more than five persons.

Those convicted of rebellion or sedition will be prosecuted summarily and will be liable to execution.

It was understood the plotters had planned to start their revolutionary movement today.

Troops and police have taken up positions along roads connecting Lima and Callao and armed patrols are guarding the capital. Telephone service also is under control of the military authorities.

Lebrun President Of French Senate

Mining Expert Succeeds Doumer, New Head of Republic.

Paris, June 11 (A.P.).—Senator Albert Francois Lebrun was elected president of the Senate today to succeed Paul Doumer, who becomes President of France Saturday.

He won over Jules Jeanneny, who was undersecretary of state in the wartime Clemenceau ministry, by a vote of 147 to 139. Two ballots were required, the result of the first being 143 for Lebrun to 141 for his opponent, which, under Senate procedure, was insufficient for election.

Lebrun, who was Raymond Poincare's choice for the presidency at the recent election, is a mining engineer. He served as vice president of the Senate when M. Doumer held the presidency. His constituency is the Department of Meurthe and Moselle, sometimes called the Ohio of France, because it so frequently furnishes presidential candidates.

The election is for the year 1931 to fill out the unexpired term of M. Doumer. The office corresponds to the Vice Presidency of the United States.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Luis Abelli Is En Route To Capital

Report Has It Tin Magnate Will Become Envoy of Bolivia.

THE arrival in New York on Monday morning of Don Luis O. Abelli, former minister of finance in the Bolivian cabinet and tin magnate of South America, gives further impetus to the persistent rumor that he will ultimately succeed Don Edouardo Diez de Medina as Minister of Bolivia to this country. Senora de Abelli, who has been in Washington with her children since last fall, will go to New York tomorrow to meet her husband, who is making the sea trip on the Santa Clara.

When Senor Abelli was in Washington last fall to assist Senora de Abelli in finding a suitable school for their young son, Luis Dante, rumor dictated the transfer of the present Minister of Bolivia to a South American post with the choice of the Bolivian government falling in all likelihood upon Senor de Abelli as successor. Lending further weight to the report was the recent removal of Senor Diez de Medina and his family from the legation to the Wardman Park Hotel. And now comes to Washington Bolivia's wizard of finance with no statement forthcoming from his wife as to the nature of his visit.

An American woman, Senora de Abelli is the former Miss Crystal Hyland, of Portland, Oreg. She met Senor de Abelli in San Francisco during the summer of the exposition there in 1915 and after their marriage they established their home in the lofty mountains, 200 miles from La Paz in the section where are located the extensive tin mines which have been operated by the Abelli family for more than half a century. An engineer of ability, Senor Abelli was graduate from the Royal Academy of Mines at London and ranks as one of Bolivia's cosmopolites, as, with his family, he divides his time between his country and the capitals of Europe. Their son was born in London and 4-year-old Crystal Eloisa calls herself a "Parisian."

Always a man of affairs in his country, the gifted Latin was representative to the Bolivian Congress for many years until his appointment a year ago as minister of finance, a position which he resigned recently. When the Maryland, with President-elect Hoover and Mrs. Hoover, touched at Antosagasti, Chile, on its famous South American cruise a few years ago the Abellis were guests on the ship at a luncheon arranged to afford the newly elected President opportunity to meet notable figures on the political stage of South America. Senora de Abelli and the two children have been living in Wesley Heights. In the house which she took last fall is a notable collection of fine old furniture and hangings and the second floor is decorated with rare furnishings from China.

THE listening public will not stand for an exclusively educational program for a whole day or night from any station, Harold A. Lafount, Federal Radio Commissioner, declared this week in an address before the second annual institute for education by radio.

"You will be lucky if you get the average adult to listen to an educational program for two hours a day," he added.

After reviewing the facts concerning the scarcity of broadcasting facilities and the tendency of education broadcasting stations during the last few years to cease operation of their own accord or sell out to commercial operators, Commissioner Lafount expressed the belief that the country is being fairly well served with educational programs at present.

At all odds, he said, commercial stations are better equipped to provide all needed educational programs. About 10 per cent of all broadcasting time is now being devoted to educational programs, he declared.

THE Federal radio body was criticised for failure to distinguish between commercial and educational stations in an address by Armstrong Perry, specialist in education by radio, before the same body, who charged that the commission had not interpreted the radio law as Congress had intended. Mr. Perry said that commercial stations operated for amusement and advertising now control 94.5 per cent of the available frequencies.

Station WMAL has announced that its newly remodeled and redecorated studios will be ready for inspection on Monday. A special program will be presented from 10 to 11 o'clock that evening.

General musical director of the NBC is the new title of Erno Rapee, who has severed his connection with the Roxy Theater in order to accept the position. Mr. Rapee will dictate the quality of musical broadcasts and supervise the artists.

DEDICATION of the Lincoln Marriage Temple will be broadcast this afternoon (WRC, 3:15 o'clock). The Secretary of Labor, William N. Doak, will be principal speaker. Gov. Flem D. Sampson and Senator Alben W. Barkley will be heard also.

The soprano voice of Jessica Dragonette will set the notes of "La Golondrina," "Beautiful Lady" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" dancing through the ether tonight (WRC, 7 o'clock).

The Men About Town, heard in the week-end program, are Frank Luther, Jack Parker, Phil Dewey and James Stanley, all old timers in radio. Will Donaldson is the accompanist.

Before going to C. B. S., Anthony Wons, now appearing daily over that network, broadcast for five years over WLS, Chicago, and one year and four months over WLW, Cincinnati.

CBS' announcer, Ted Husing, will play the New York Palace shortly, the salary being $2,500 a week.

SEVERAL awards to American composers for original compositions that can be played in twelve minutes or less will be made by the National Broadcasting Co. this year. The contest will be in charge of Deems Taylor, the composer.

An action by the fire commissioner of New York City to eliminate roof radio antennas, because of their menace to fire fighting, may make thousands of radio receivers in the metropolitan area obsolete. Newer receivers, utilizing pentode and variable-mu tubes, may be operated without roof antennas, but because of their newness there are comparatively few such sets in operation in New York City.

"The Lady From the Sea," haunting drama by Henrik Ibsen, will be presented by the Radio Guild tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 3:15 p. m.)

PHILLIPS LORD'S rural characters, "Uncle Abe and David," return to the air as "The Stebbins Brothers" on June 22. The act will have a fifteen-minute period daily, the locale being a Maine village, with the characters a pair of easy-going, philosophizing country doctors.

INTERPRETER of the MODE

New York, June 11.

A WELL-KNOWN novelist who writes about and for women said to me, the other day, "Every woman wants a perfectly tailored black cloth suit and several silver foxes to wear with it!" He was trying to prove to me how simple this business of writing about fashions really is. Well, I was forced to explain to him how far away we've gotten from this simple ideal of feminine elegance. But later on, in thinking it over, I discovered that if he had said, "Every woman wants a suit of some kind in her wardrobe," he would have been completely right.

Because suits are just one of those things that persist unchallenged season after season. I suppose it's the simplicity and fascination of being able to change your aspect from day to day merely by changing your blouse, that accounts for it. But about the only thing in suits that hasn't changed this season is that they still consist of skirt, jacket and blouse.

Every collection of the haute couture this season showed suits of one kind or another, for every time of the day and even night, and in every possible length of jacket and material. The black crepe suit with the tiny bolero jacket which shows the blouse beneath it all the way around appears side by side (in the collections, at least) with the knee-length belted wool jacket and contrasting skirt type of suit.

I mentioned evening suits, and I must tell you more about them. They're the natural outgrowth of the jumper-and-skirt evening frock. And they have the kind of formal-informal elegance that can carry them through from dining while it's still light to the theater, supper and dancing. One lovely evening suit of black and white satin has a three-quarter black satin coat-wrap, and the outfit must be worn with an evening hat. This one was accompanied by a shiny black straw hat with white aigrettes on the side.

The best of us can be demoralized, at the end of a busy day, by a wilted collar or soiled cuffs—and lots of us have been caught in just such an embarrassing predicament by an unexpected engagement. 'N', naturally, I didn't think that condition very lovely-lady-like, so I studied the matter for o-o-h, ever so long—and got the perfect solution! Whether you work in an office, or go shopping in town, or keep up the smartest little bungalow in the suburbs, you should hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet about the dress with perky little collars and cuffs that can be changed in a jiffy! The dress is as inexpensive and easy to make as can be—and the most becoming thing!

* * * * *

Just breathless beauty seems to be the password of evening fashions this season! As the weather grows warmer the materials grow lighter in weight, more elaborately trimmed, and, of course, lovelier. The evening gown from Molyneux that I have sketched today is an example of this gorgeous loveliness. It's of pale pink chiffon, embroidered with tiny, flashing rhinestones, and with graceful, airy ostrich plumes.

* * * * *

And a graceful return of an old, old Aztec Indian idea is shown in the little evening cape I show—of white tulle, this modern version, and covered with shining white feathers, bordered with tulle and tied about the shoulders with a grace that no one attains better than Schiaparelli!

Pleasant surprises are found in the weekly Dare fashion letter. It's always in the big Sunday Washington Post.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "MacCready" is of Celtic origin. In most cases its source is the Irish "MacRiada," which means "the son of Riada." The personal name "Riada" means "tamed" and "trained." The commonest modern variations of "MacCready" are "MacReedy," "MacReady" and "MacCreedy."

One of the most confusing elements in English names is "fair," which occurs commonly as a first or last syllable. Names which include this element are extremely misleading, since "fair" has been found to have a great variety of meanings, many of which are quite different from what one might believe at first thought. The family name "Fairbanks" serves as an excellent example to illustrate this confusion. Whereas the second element of "Fairbanks" is obviously the Middle English "banke," meaning "mound" or "embankment," the first element has been traced back to the Old English "fearr" (a bull), the Old English "fearh" (a boar) and the Old Norse "faer" (a sheep).

The family name "Fairbrother" (also spelled "Farebrother" and "Farbrother") generally recalls the old courteous style of address, as in the expression "fair sir," which was used as the English equivalent of the French "beau sire." However, it has been found that in some cases the name "Fairbrother" was given as a nickname with the obvious meanings of "blonde brother" or "handsome brother." Finally, there is evidence that not infrequently "Fairbrother" was given as a literal translation of the French "beaufrere," which really means "brother-in-law." An English document of the year 1300 bears the name of Walter Beaufrere. A certain Adam Bonffere (literally "good-brother") is mentioned in a document of the year 1279.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF June 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1:45 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1:06 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5:50 p. m.

The planetary aspects of June 12 denote general dissatisfaction, which, in your case, will induce self-analysis, and a fixed resolution to change ideas which, though hitherto accepted, have not produced anticipated results. It will be a day fraught with far-reaching consequences.

Children born on this June 12 will, on attaining adulthood, reveal staying qualities and grit. The signs do not hold out for them any success, except that which is attained only after a long struggle. They will be patient, persevering and loyally devoted to family and to friends.

You, if born on June 12, deservedly enjoy popularity. Your manners are charming, and your personality is attractive. There is no affectation about you, and all your actions are prompted by naturalness and simplicity. Your heart is in the right place, and you go out of your way to help and to encourage others, without ever adopting a patronizing or "holier-than-thou" attitude.

You, so your horoscope says, are fated to achieve success, not by shrewdness or superintellectuality, but by the compelling force of absolutely straightforward methods, aided by urbanity and consideration for others. Your ideal in life is to do unto others what you would that they should do unto you. You are, whether a leader or a subordinate, painstaking and conscientious.

Your married life, and you should marry young, will be full of happiness, and your home will always be of abiding interest, unmarred by wrangling or jealousy. Not a keen participant, you always evince a lively interest in sports. You, too, are a great reader—although never so interested in a book or paper as to become a boor. The stars predict that your life will be a busy one, an eventful and successful one, and above all, a happy one.

Successful people born June 12:
George Bush, theologian.
John A. Roebling, engineer.
Alice M. W. Rollins, author.
Francis Saltus Saltus, poet and author.
Frank M. Chapman, ornithologist.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MORE ABOUT PERGOLAS.

WE pick bittersweet berries to bring a bit of color to our table in the winter. The bittersweet vine is always a wise choice for an arbor or trellis in a city backyard. Climbing roses in any garden, irrespective of size, will make an effective background for a border of hardy herbaceous plants.

When planting vines for any purpose it is best, when possible, to plant for permanent effect. In other words use perennials. The bignonia, or old-fashioned trumpet vine, is a splendid creeper for heavy duty and massive effects. Because of its size and weight, it is only suitable for a sturdy arbor.

The bignonia is dependable and in bloom its deep-throated, burnt-orange trumpets are very colorful against the deep green of its foliage.

Grapevines of all sorts are excellent for landscape planting. The native American species are perhaps the best of all. Grapes are especially adapted to planting about pergolas.

The climbing rose must always be considered in planting schemes where climbers are desired. The one drawback to climbing roses is the fact that they are so prone to mildew and rust. Many of these troubles may be eliminated by frequent applications of Massey dust.

The formula for this preparation was worked out by Dr. L. M. Massey, of Cornell University, at the instance of the American Rose Society and was first published in its annual of 1918.

Massey dust is composed of nine parts of dusting sulphur and one part of lead arsenate. The ingredients should be thoroughly mixed and applied with a blower gun.

The best time to use Massey dust is when the dew is on the roses.

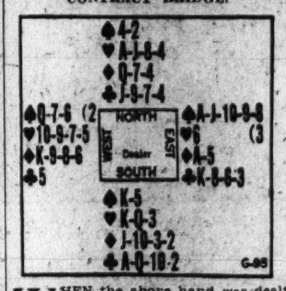

In applying it, care must be exercised to see that it reaches both sides of the foliage.

In most city gardens we see a generous planting of old-fashioned honeysuckle. This has much to recommend it when it is planted to ramble over a steep bank, but on a small arbor it may become an unsightly matted mass.

Work's Bridge

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

WHEN the above hand was dealt in a game of Contract Bridge, South bid one No Trump, West and North passed, East called two Spades, and South passed. West knew that his partner would not have kept the bidding open without the full equivalent of the strength needed for an original bid of two Spades. West's 2½ raisers, accordingly, were more than enough for a bid of three Spades. North passed, and East called four Spades. Not vulnerable and with excellent distribution, East had a shade more strength than his two-Spade bid had indicated. South's business double was followed by three passes.

South led the King of Hearts, North played the Eight, and South continued with the Queen. East ruffed and led a small Club. North won and led a trump, which was won by South's King. When South led another trump, dummy was left with but one trump for ruffing Clubs and Declarer was forced to lose two more tricks in that suit and was set two tricks.

Do you see how the play of both East and North could have been improved?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

After trumping the second round of Hearts, East should lead the King of Clubs. South, having doubled, probably has the Ace of Clubs and the King of Spades. East's only chance for game is to find the King of Spades but once guarded. In that case South, thrown in the lead with the Ace of Clubs, can not lead trumps without sacrificing a trump trick and giving Declarer game; so game is made regardless of South's lead since any lead but a trump permits dummy to ruff three Clubs.

This chance for game, which East rejected, was merely a little gift from North. As soon as dummy's hand is laid down, North should realize that Declarer desires to ruff Clubs in dummy and that South is not in position to lead trumps. North should overtake South's King of Hearts with the Ace and lead a trump. Perfect defense by North thus insures a defeated contract.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

"PICKISH" CHILDREN.

THIS story was told the writer by a physician who grew up in western Ontario—well, let us say, 65 years ago. They lived in a pioneer farming community. Their diet consisted principally of meat, flour, cereals made from grains, edible roots, such as potatoes and beets, milk and milk products.

He was a slender child, rather tall for his age. The family tradition is that he was a "pickish" eater. Others might have called him a "picky" eater, and still others a "finicky" eater. A child that is normal in temperament and personality is built on the average lines and is in good health, is husky and has an appetite to match.

He works harder than a ditch digger, he grows night as well as day, and his excessive proportion of skin surface—all combined—require that he should eat more ounces of food per pound of his weight than an adult does. Therefore we expect him to go to the table ready to eat all of whatever is put before him and even to threaten the table cloth and silverware.

If he is not equipped with that kind of an appetite there must be something wrong. There was something wrong with this fellow. It was not a case of too much attention or "mamma's darling" with him. He was one of a half dozen in a good old Celtic family, and he had to be satisfied with his share of parental care. He had the great good fortune of home education by a family of sisters and brothers.

If there is anything in this matter of build then his body type was partly at fault. He was a long, lean fellow, one of the linear type. His diet was also at fault. He lived on a farm in an inland region 65 years ago, and his diet was not well balanced. When he grew older he got a job on the Pacific slope with a surveying party. There he had sea food and a different diet, and he was permanently cured of being a "pickish" eater. As it is, he is now 75 years old, well built, strong, in good flesh, vigorous, and good for many active years.

So far as this applies, it proves that change of diet is of some service in curing the "pickish" eater of his "pickishness." However, it is better proof that a "pickish" child may grow into a strong man, with a long life expectancy, and that he may live happily ever afterward.

BABY, GLASSES, BREATH.

Mrs. H. W. writes:

1. At times my baby daughter gets her chin slightly sore from spitting and slobbering. What could I apply to remedy this?

2. I have heard that the sunlight through glasses darkens the skin under the eyes, causing those ugly circles. Is that so?

3. Does catarrh cause bad breath?

REPLY.

1. Grease with any protective face cream.

2. No.

3. "Catarrh" is a very loose term. One disease of the nose, ozena, is sometimes called catarrh. It is one of the rarer causes of halitosis.

DISLIKES MORNING RISING.

B. S. writes: I am considered a nervous type, and am always sick and upset if I get up before noon. I have never been able to hold a job over a week in my life. I have tried different doctors and methods, but to no avail. Is there any difference in the air in the morning and during the day?

REPLY.

Why blame the air?

I judge you are unemployable because you are of an inferior constitution and without training. A psychiatrist could tell you whether you are capable of being trained.

SEE A PSYCHIATRIST.

C. D. writes: Where can I have a person in the twenties examined or treated who has suicidal tendencies?

REPLY.

Go to a psychiatrist.

POST BEACH COLONY AMONG BEST OF KIND

Hundreds Seek Woodland as Offering Escape From Summer Heat.

In an attractive setting on the South River in Maryland, just 32 miles from Washington, there is gradually coming into being a summer home colony which promises to rank among the finest of the kind in this section of the country.

The site is known as Woodland Beach and it is a development offered to residents of the Capital at a price which seldom has been rivaled in such colonies. Hundreds of Washingtonians have gone to Woodland Beach, seen and been convinced. Others have looked over drawings of the layout and from their previous knowledge of the territory have been "sold" on the idea and immediately become lot owners.

With hundreds of lots disposed of, there are still many choice locations remaining for persons interested in a spot on which to build a summer home far enough from the city to give relief in the warm months and yet near enough for overnight commuting.

Woodland Beach fills both these requirements, and as for price it can hardly be approached. The price of any lot at the beach is $93, but payment of that amount in cash is not necessary. A subscription to The Post and payment of $9 is all that is needed before you select your location. The remainder may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50.

To reach Woodland Beach (and there is no better place to spend a few hours Sunday) the motorist drives out Defense highway toward Annapolis, turning right at Camp Parole on Maryland State highway No. 2, across the South River Bridge and then left on Mayo road, following this highway to the beach. Persons traveling by W., B. & A. electric cars may go to Camp Parole, where on Sundays and holidays all cars are met by buses which transport visitors to and from the beach.

Remember Woodland Beach is only 32 miles away. Even though you have planned something for part of Sunday, you may run out to the beach and return in short time and the visit may prove one of the best investments you ever made.

Boating, bathing and fishing are among the many attractions of Woodland Beach and you'll want to take advantage of all three before the summer is ended.

Y Camp Developer Honored by Dinner

John C. Letts Is Guest of Honor for Help Given Association.

John C. Letts, retired merchant, whose philanthropy has been largely responsible for the development of Camp Letts, the Y. M. C. A. summer camp for boys on the Rhodes River, near Annapolis, Md., was guest of honor at a dinner celebrating his seventieth birthday anniversary at the Cosmos Club last night.

Members of the staff of the Washington Y. M. C. A. and prominent members of the association extended their felicitations and paid impressive tributes to Mr. Letts at the dinner.

The climax of the program was the presentation of a leather-bound testimonial book containing 70 letters from boys who have enjoyed the camp, pictures of the camp and numerous news articles about activities there. The book was presented by Col. P. M. Anderson. Huston Thompson, president of the Y. M. C. A., presided at the dinner.

If selected she would be the first woman to run for the State Legislature in Louisiana.

The guest of an old friend, Dr. Mary L. B. Wooster, at her home on Q street, Miss Metcalf will be in Washington about a month, "mixing" politics and social activities. Policeman Beaten, Man Awaits Trial

Private Loses Prisoner and Pistol in Assault by Crowd of 15.

Trial of Hoyt Arnold, colored, 21 years old, of Missouri avenue, near Third street northwest, in connection with an assault on a policeman, was postponed until today, when he was arraigned in court yesterday.

Private G. E. Chappelle, attached to the Sixth Precinct, reported early yesterday morning that he arrested a colored woman at Four-and-a-half street and Missouri avenue. When he attempted to get her to a patrol box he was attacked by a crowd of about fifteen colored men, who pelted him with bricks and took his prisoner and his service revolver from him.

Chappelle was treated at Emergency Hospital for lacerations to his head and face, and bruises about his body. Arnold was arrested later and charged with larceny. Police said they found Chappelle's service revolver in the man's possession.

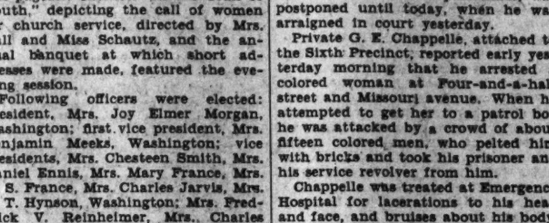

Man Held on Stolen Goods Count.

Abraham Milloff, 23 years of age, of Third street southwest near D, was booked at the Sixth Precinct Station yesterday on a charge of receiving stolen goods, valued at $152.16. Police said the merchandise was stolen from the Clagett Cigar & Tobacco Co. at 107 Sixth street northwest on May 17.

YEARS OF GRACE

By Margaret Ayer Barnes

SYNOPSIS.

Months have passed since Jimmy left Chicago, headed for the Orient, telling Jane he would never forget her. The World War is raging. Jane had received one post card from Jimmy from China. Then silence, until one day a letter comes to her from Jimmy. He wrote from Germany, where he had joined the German army, from a spirit of restlessness and desire to forget. They censor a telegram from Agnes. She had word that Jimmy has been killed in action, and asks Jane to come to her. Neither Agnes nor Stephen know of Jimmy's love for Jane. She goes to New York to comfort Agnes and learns that the latter has just had a play accepted for Broadway production. Though Jimmy is dead, he lives in the hearts of two women.

PART IV.

CICILY, JENNY AND STEVE—

CHAPTER I.

"BUT you're children," said Stephen.

"Oh, Dad," said Cicily, with a tolerant smile, "be your age."

Jane looked from Stephen to her twinkling daughter. Stephen was sitting in his armchair in the Lakewood living room. The Evening Post, which had fallen from his hands a moment before at Cicily's astounding announcement, lay on the floor at his feet. He was gazing at Cicily with an expression of mingled incredulity and consternation.

Jack Not Disheartened.

Cicily, her hand thrust casually through Jack Bridges' arm, was standing on the hearth rug. She looked very cool and a little amused and not at all disheartened. She looked, indeed, just as she always did, like a yellow dandelion, with her tempestuous bobbed head of golden excelsior. The severity of her khaki uniform with its Red Cross insignia enhanced her flower-like charm. It was the common clay from which the flower had sprung. She looked as fresh as a dandelion, and as indifferent and irresponsible. Jack Bridges was in khaki, with the crossed rifles of the infantryman on his collar and the gold star of the second lieutenant on his shoulders. He had come down yesterday for that week-end's leave from Camp Brant at Rockford. He had just learned that he was sailing for France in six weeks with the Eighty-sixth Division.

Jack did not look at all disheartened, either, but not quite as cool as Cicily, nor nearly as indifferent nor as much amused. He looked just like Robin, Jane thought, with his pleasant snub-nosed smile and his friendly pale blue eyes. He was glancing at Stephen a trifle apologetically, but with no lack of self-confidence.

"How could I have seen this was coming?" thought Jane.

"We're not children, Dad," continued Cicily with a pleasant smile. "I was nineteen in February and Jack will be twenty-two in July. We're both well out of the perambulator!"

"I know just how you feel, sir," said Jack sympathetically, "and I dare say, in a way, you're right. If it weren't for the war, I don't suppose we would be getting married. If it weren't for the war I'd be going to Tech all next winter and Cicily would be buzzing about the tea-fights at home. Still, she'd soon be marrying some one else, you know. I'd never have had the nerve to ask a girl like Cicily to wait for me. If it weren't for the war, I'd be just an 'also ran!'"

"Wasn't fought in vain, was it, Jacky?" said Cicily, pinching his elbow.

He kissed her pink cheek, very coolly, under her parents' startled eyes.

Honeymoon Before He Sails.

"I wouldn't expect to keep Cicily waiting at the church very long, even in war-time," said Jack—Jane caught the note of humility behind his levity—"so we thought——"

"Jack!" said Cicily. "Don't put it like that! We don't think—we know! We're going to get married, Dad, on the last day of June and have a two weeks' honeymoon before he sails for France."

"Cicily," said Jane, "you're much too young. You haven't had any experience. You can't know your own mind. The war has been fearfully upsetting. I know, for your generation. But you're still a child. Oh—I know you've been home a year from Rosemary! But what sort of year has it been? Just war work—and Jack. Not even a proper debut. He was here every evening last summer when he was at Fort Sheridan in the R. O. T. C. And since he went to Rockford you've been getting letters and motoring up to see him and planning to get him down here on leave! You've never looked at another man——" Why hadn't she seen this was coming? It was all so terribly clear in retrospect.

Stephen Refuses Permission.

"You can't get married," said Stephen firmly, "before Jack goes to France."

"You married Mumsy," said Cicily sweetly, "before you went to Cuba."

"That was very different," said Jane.

"Why was it different?" said Cicily.

"Because your father was 29 years old," said Jane decidedly, "and I was 21 and I'd been home from college for two years and I'd known lots of men and——"

"Well, I bet if you'd wanted to marry the first man you looked at you'd have done it!" said Cicily.

A sudden flood of memories swept over Jane. Her father's library on Pine street. Her mother, shrill and effective. Her father, kind and competent. Herself and Andre, two shaken, irresolute children, standing mute before them, a world of young emotion lying shattered at their feet. But this generation was different. No trace even of anxiety in Cicily's amused smile.

"Anyway, I'm going to. We're not asking you, Mumsy, we're telling you! It's all settled. Belle's talking to Aunt Isabel this minute——"

"Belle?" questioned Jane.

Double Wedding Plans.

"Belle and Albert," said Cicily. "Albert Lancaster. He's told his mother. We're going to have a double wedding, here in the garden, the last day of June."

"A double wedding!" cried Jane and Stephen at once.

"Yes," said Cicily calmly. "Do you think the roses will be out? We've planned for everything. Why, Jenny's known about it for two weeks. She's going to be bridesmaid for both of us. Just Jenny—but lots of ushers, with crossed swords, you know. Belle and I are going to cut the cakes with Albert's and Jack's sabers."

"Cicily," said Jane, "this is perfectly preposterous! Aunt Isabel will never listen to you! Why, Belle's only 18! Albert's not yet 20."

"He will be in August," said Cicily. "I don't see why you carry on about it like this. I don't see why you don't think it's all very sweet and touching. Belle's been my best friend all my life and now I'm marrying her brother and she's marrying the son of one of your best friends and——"

Looked It Up in Havelock Ellis.

"In the first place," said Stephen, "you're all first cousins."

"Albert isn't anybody's first cousin," said Cicily pertly. "So that lets Belle out. And as for Jack and me—that's all right. We looked it all up in Havelock Ellis. There's no danger in consanguinity if there isn't an hereditary taint in the family. We've been awfully eugenic, Mumsy! We've simply scoured the connection for an hereditary taint! And we haven't found a thing but Uncle Robin's short-sightedness. Of course, I'd hate to have a short-sighted baby—but maybe I wouldn't as it's not in the common line. Any way, there's no insanity, nor epilepsy, nor cancer, nor T. B., or venereal disease——"

"Cicily," said Stephen a little hastily, "you don't know what you're talking about——"

Cicily dropped Jack's arm and sank down on the arm of her father's chair. She kissed the bald spot on top of his head very tenderly.

Jane Will "Talk It Over."

"Dad, dear," she said very sweetly, "perhaps we don't. Perhaps you didn't know just what you were talking about when you wanted to marry Mumsy. But still you did it. You did it and you went to war and it all came out all right. Can't you remember how you felt when you wanted to marry Mumsy——?"

Across the dandelion head Stephen's eyes met Jane's.

"What are we going to do with them, Jane?" he said, with a smile that was half a sigh.

"Nothing," said Jane very practically, "at the moment. We'll talk it over with Isabel and Robin. And Muriel, of course. I don't suppose Bert understands much, any more, of what goes on around him, but Muriel's always decided——"

Cicily jumped to her feet and threw her arms around Jane's neck.

"That's a good Mumsy!" she cried. Then, turning to Jack, "Come out in the garden, old thing! The apple tree's still in bloom!" She seized his hand and turned toward the terrace doors.

"Cicily," said Jane doubtfully, "nothing is settled. I don't quite like——"

Cicily burst into indulgent laughter.

A Very Different Generation.

"What do you think I am, Mumsy?" she inquired cheerily. "Sweet 19 and never been kissed? Oh, you are precious—both of you!" She tossed a kiss to her parents on the hearth rug and dragged Jack from the room. Jane watched their slim, young, khaki-clad figures romp down the lawn and disappear behind the clump of trees.

"Stephen," said Jane, "it's a very different generation. But what are we going to do?"

"I'm going to remember," said Stephen, rising from his chair, "how I felt when I wanted to marry Mumsy!" He took her hand in his. Dear old Stephen! His eyes were just a little moist behind his bone-rimmed spectacles. Jane kissed him very tenderly.

"Just the same," said Jane, "I wasn't a bit like Cicily."

"You were just as sweet," said Stephen, "and nearly as young."

"But I was different," said Jane. "I know I was different." She sighed a little as she slipped from Stephen's embrace. "Well—we'll see what Isabel has to say," she said.

RAILS LEAD STOCKS IN RALLY AT CLOSE

Market Is Quiet, With Sales of 1,700,000 Shares; Tone Becomes Strong.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—The financial markets were quiet today. Stocks frittered away most of the session without reaching much of a decision, but a late rally in the rails enlivened proceedings and gave a strong tone to the close. Wheat was affected by weather news, but losses were small.

Shares moved up along a wide front at the opening, but with the exception of the carrier issues, which were stimulated by the executives' meeting, those prices were, for the most part, the day's highest. Efforts to extend the advance met with some resistance, and the list backed and filled thereafter until the final spurt smoothed out moderate declines that had developed by the last hour. The volume was small, only 1,700,000 shares changing hands.

United States Steel rubbed out all but ⅛ of an extreme dip of 2 points, and there were minor fractional declines in American Can, Radio, General Electric, General Motors and Consolidated Gas.

Rail Issues Rally.

The rails, however, rallied sturdily when reports from the conference indicated that an agreement was being reached on the freight increase petition. Atchison and Union Pacific gained 5; Southern Pacific, Rock Island and Baltimore & Ohio, about 4, and Pennsylvania, New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Missouri Pacific and New Haven, 2 to 3. Southern Railway, which had tumbled 3 points on the dividend statement by the directors, recovered its loss.

The agrement among the railroad presidents for a 15 per cent rise in freight rates was in line with expectations. Little time is to be lost in getting the petition before the Interstate Commerce Commission, indicating that other roads subscribe to the statement of President Gray, of the Union Pacific, who said freight revenues of Western roads in the last five or six months had reached "an irreducible minimum."

Aside from some dividend changes of an unfavorable nature, the market had little definite news to work on. Bradstreet's reported that building permit value at 215 cities declined last month. Although it was the first drop of the year, there was compensation in the fact that a loss in May is seasonal.

Special Effects on Stocks.

A few stocks were affected by special considerations. Fox, for example, profited by active short covering prompted by the announcement that the dividend had been reduced and not eliminated and that the management hoped to restore the former rate later in the year. Woolworth claimed some speculative attention on the theory that a distribution might be forthcoming, as a result of the addition to surplus accruing through recapitalization of the British subsidiary.

Weakness of German bonds was accompanied by a sag in the mark, reflecting withdrawal of American credits from Germany. The Canadian dollar was again heavy, strengthening prospects of gold shipments from the dominion. Large importations of American goods in anticipation of the new Canadian tariff rates is given as a reason for the decline. Sterling was also heavy.

The $49,000,000 decrease in brokers' loans in the last week showed that the buying responsible for the recovery in stocks during the period had come largely from the shorts, and also that so far they stimulate speculative borrowing. Public participation in the market seems to be strictly on a cautious investment basis. Larger traders have doubtless used the rise to liquidate holdings.

Losses in wheat ranged from ¼ to ¾. Corn was firm, with net changes nominal.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Cotton was generally higher today. After selling up to 8.84 early, October reacted to 8.78 under realizing or general liquidation, but firmed up again, advancing to 8.96 in the late trading and closing at 8.95. The final tone was firm at net advances of 20 to 23 points.

The opening was steady, unchanged to 3 points higher. There may have been a little selling on the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and a favorable view of the weather news, but the offerings were light and readily absorbed, with the market soon showing net advances of about 5 to 10 points. These bulges seemed to meet a little more cotton which was supposed to include liquidation by recent buyers and some local selling promoted by the rather indifferent showing of the early stock market. Prices reacted a few points from the best, but the market soon stiffened up again on a continuance of trade demand and renewed covering. The latter became more active in the late trading, when it seemed to be accelerated by the late steadiness of the stock market, and prices reached the best figures of the day just before the close. July sold at 8.59 and December at 9.21, or about 40 to 45 points above the low prices of last Monday, and the close was within a point or two of the best on most positions.

Trade buying was reported more in evidence than for some time past and to be coming from both domestic and foreign sources. Liverpool and the continent were among the buyers here, and according to private cable advices the trade was also a buyer in the Liverpool market before the local opening. Recent reports of increasing insect infestation in the South may have been a contributing factor on the advance, and there was some bullish connection on reiterated reports concerning the stimulating effects of national cotton week on the retail turnover of cotton goods.

July liquidation was absorbed by spot houses against sales of later deliveries at the existing premiums. Liverpool cables reported that liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling and covering in that market. Exports today, 11,616, making 6,491,048 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,370. U. S. port stocks, 3,139,689.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—Sudden reactions from a late rally in grain prices today followed disclosures that buying on the bulge had proved unexpectedly thin. The rally accompanied reports that rain relief in Canadian drought territory was disappointing, and that only two points had received more than half an inch. There was enough rain apparently, however, to allay anxiety of speculators, and most traders appeared willing to believe that bullish crop news had been discounted for the moment at least.

Wheat closed unsettled, ¼ to ⅝ cents lower, corn unchanged to ⅜ down, oats ¼ to ⅜ off, and provisions at 15 to 30 cents advance.

Sellers of wheat found their chief incentive in Canadian rains, which were fairly heavy as reported by trade advices but mostly light judged by official information. Messages telling of fresh moisture in Canada, especially southern Saskatchewan, had an early bearish influence, the market effect of which was increased by simultaneous reports of augmented offerings of Argentine and Australia wheat at Liverpool. There were also cables that wheat harvesting had commenced in Italy, and that within the next two or three weeks it would be active in Spain, Greece, Portugal and southern France. Harvesting of winter wheat in Kansas was expected to start on June 15 in extreme southern counties.

Considerable notice was taken of scant Russian wheat shipments this week. Only 48,000 bushels. A British trade authority asserted that the remaining wheat surplus in Russia available for export had dwindled to negligible proportions. Friends of higher prices made much also of word from a Chicago crop expert at Swift Current, Saskatchewan, that west of Regina most fields were badly blown, as bare as they were last fall, and that what little wheat was left in the district referred to could make only a meager crop. Special stress, too, was laid at times on reports that in northwestern North Dakota and northwestern Montana 50 per cent of late sown heat had not yet germinated. North American export demand was again slow.

A brisk rally followed an early drop in corn, but the market weakened decidedly in the late trading. December corn touched a new low price record for the season. Favorable corn crop reports were at hand, especially from Iowa. Oats paralleled corn.

Provisions reflected an advance in hog values.

GERMAN BONDS HIT IN NERVOUS SELLING

Rails Develop Strong Tone, Closing Generally Higher; Offerings Small.

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Nervous selling forced wide declines in a long list of German government, municipal and industrial issues today, sending some of the more prominent bonds to new 1931 minimums.

The volume of offerings in most cases was small, but the absence of nearby bids reflecting the adverse effect upon sentiment of the discussion of Germany's financial condition resulted in losses of from 1 to 3 points. Loans of a few central European countries were affected sympathetically.

Contrasting sharply with this decline was the strong tone of second grade and speculative carried bonds. The prospect that the freight increase, if granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will bolster earnings is welcomed in bond circles where concern has been shown for the credit standing of some roads.

As a result of the improved inquiry for second grade rails, the carriers reached a new high for the current advance as reflected in the averages. Utilities, which according to some compilations are now at a postwar peak, crept upward in moderate activity. United States Governments were generally higher.

From a standpoint of activity, selling of German issues was most marked in the two government loans—the so-called Dawes 7s and the International 5½s—and Deutsche Bank 6s. The first two reached new lows for the year, the 7s receded 2 to close at 96½ and the International 5½s yielded 2¾ to 65, a new low since the offering a year ago at 92. The bank issue reacted 1½. The reactionary trend extended to the entire group and attracted some offerings of infrequently traded issues. German Central Agricultural Bank loans declined 2 and 3 points. Brazilians and Chileans were soft spots in the Latin American group.

The buoyancy of rails was most marked in such issues as St. Paul 5s, Chicago Great Western 4s, Chicago & Northwestern 5s and convertible 4¾s, Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific issues, Nickel Plate 6s, Frisco 4½s and Wabash 4½s.

Curb Review

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Showing good resistance to moderate selling pressure, leading shares in the curb market closed firm today. The appreciation in quoted values was narrow and in most instances confined to a small fraction.

The volume of business showed little change from previous days this week. The total turnover amounted to 310,000 shares, against 250,000 yesterday. While the performance of the list in resuming its upward trend this week has not attracted a large volume of business, traders were encouraged by the success with which leading shorts have stubbornly resisted spasmodic efforts to depress the market.

Although trading in oils contracted, the group gave a good account of itself and closed above yesterday's final level. Vacuum sagged to 37⅝ before rallying to 39¼, at which it closed for a 1-point advance. Standard of Kentucky and Humble appreciated ½. Gulf rose a point, but reacted ½ net. Standard of Indiana was active and held above the previous closing price, but its net advance was only ⅛. Cities Service advanced ⅜.

The heavy trading in United Gas Corporation new was the individual feature of the utilities. The stock was buoyant and more active than it has been in several weeks. On a turnover of nearly 30,000 shares the stock gained a point, to close at 7½. United Light & Power A was well bought and rose ¾. Electric Bond & Share was under moderate pressure most of the day, but a late rally erased all but ⅛ of a 1-point recession. Associated Gas preferred touched a new year's high, rising 14 points.

Specialties followed the swing of utilities and closed irregularly higher. Driver Harris new, Dresser Manufacturing A, Glen Alden Coal, Great Atlantic & Pacific nonvoting, Roan Antelope, Technicolor and Celanese preferred new closed 1 to 2 higher. Chesebrough Manufacturing gained 9½. Aluminum of America reacted 1½ to cancel the previous day's advance. Deere, Libby, McNeil & Libby, A. O. Smith and Cuneo Press were lower.

Continental Shares preferred and Prudential Investment preferred appreciated about a point each. Other issues in the investment and holding company group fluctuated narrowly and closed steady.

NATS WIN 6TH STRAIGHT, CUT A'S LEAD TO 3 1-2 GAMES;

HOWELL, PITT, NOLAN, EYNON SURVIVE COLUMBIA GOLF

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IMPRESSIONS at Griffith Stadium yesterday . . . Only 3,000 in the stands . . . A slim gathering for a team that is in second place . . . And which has won 10 out of 13 in the present home stand . . . Including six straight . . . Lloyd Brown forgetting that the plate had corners as well as a heart . . . He was throwing base hits for two and two-thirds innings yesterday . . . Extra base hits in the third . . . Myer scurrying around to third base on his triple opening the Nats' first inning . . . Running like a greased gazelle . . . Dick Porter waggling his bat on every appearance at the plate . . . The champion bat waggler of the league . . . The sickening thud that permeated to the stands when Joe Cronin turned his shoulder into Harder's fast one . . . Why did he limp going down to first base? . . . How does Cronin ever hit a ball with that funny stance? . . . He shifts his feet on every pitch . . . Steps into the bucket a la Simmons on the inside curves . . . Joe Kuhel's tumbling act when Harder's wild pitch clipped him on the calf of the leg in the fifth . . . Upset him completely and deposited him in a heap in the batter's box . . . It hurt . . . Sammy West's short steps carrying him across the greensward in center field with amazing speed . . . Looks like he takes every long fly with an over-the-shoulder catch . . . But he doesn't . . . It's the optical illusion you get from the stands 'cause West wears his glove on his right hand 'cause he's left-handed . . . That clout of Morgan's over the right-field wall . . . A wallop for a right-handed hitter . . . Dave Harris can hit 'em over that wall, too . . . Old Joe Harris used to in the pennant days of 1925. . . . Eddie Morgan was a target for both Kuhel and Manush . . . Their hits skidded by him like rockets . . . Manush chokes his bat . . . Hits to all fields . . . That's the beauty of it . . . Sammy West placed his hit deliberately in the fifth . . . He pushed a double to left field . . . Just stuck his bat in front of the ball . . . Johnson riled in the fifth when Guthrie ordered Averill to walk on a half strike . . . Chased Dineen all the way to second base to get the decision reversed . . . But nothing doing . . . The job has made the easy-going Walter belligerent . . . Spencer's throw to Myer to catch Kamm stealing in the first was perfect . . . Out by 3 feet.

Spencer gives the Nats a threat in eighth place in the batting order.... A novel situation for a Washington team....The crowd was divided between the ball game and the scoreboard....Gladdened by the three runs posted for St. Louis in the first inning....Uneasy as Philadelphia scored a run in the fifth and another in the sixth....Relieved when the board showed three more for the Browns in the seventh....And two more in the eighth....In the dark about the St. Louis pitcher....Must have been a rookie....He wasn't listed on the scoreboard....The top of the Nats' batting order is inspiring. ....What wallopers....Manush low man with a .330 average....Joe Cronin, .351, batting third....Dave Harris, .409, "clean-up" man....Sammy West, .372, in fifth place....Washington never had a murderers' row like that....Jack Hayes is a dead right field hitter....And right handed, too. ....But slow on the bases....Very slow for a young fellow trying to make good....But he can field.... Always could....Used to show up Bucky Harris at second base when he first broke in....A more natural ball player than Bucky....But that's where the comparison stops....The gambling gentry offered 8 to 5 on the Nats before the game....Nine to five in some spots....But they didn't congregate by the hot dog stand back of home plate....That's the territory of the "four horsemen" these days. But you could get a bet down lots of

Virginia Star In Semifinal With Nolan

Pitt Is Forced to 21 Holes to Win 2d Round Match.

Peacock Defeated by Howell; Nolan Wins Over Roesch.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE semifinal round in the invitation golf tournament of the Columbia Club will be played this morning with William R. Howell, winner of the Columbia event last year and twice Middle Atlantic champion, paired against M. Parker Nolan, the siege-gun of the Congressional Club, in the upper bracket, and Harry G. Pitt, former Middle Atlantic champion and recent winner of the Indian Spring Club tournament, paired against Everett Eynon, champion of the Columbia Club, in the lower half.

The matches by which Howell and Pitt survived for the semifinals attracted the largest interest, especially when Pitt's struggle ended in his victory on the twenty-first hole. Howell played against Roger Peacock, Argyle, who was District junior champion two years ago. Peacock was 2 down at the fourteenth tee but won the fourteenth when Howell played his second shot into a trap and the fifteenth when Howell's badly hooked drive landed his ball in a ditch.

Howell should have won the sixteenth, for he was on the green with his tee shot, but took three putts, allowing Peacock, who had played a penalty shot after a drive into the ditch and then holed out in one putt, to halve the hole. On the seventeenth Peacock overapproached the green and lost the hole and then lost the home hole with a 5, to Howell's par 4.

Pitt Fights Uphill Battle.

Pitt made a gallant uphill battle to win from Gordon Wood, of the Hermitage Club, Richmond, Va. At the turn, Pitt, after a series of missed shots, was 4 down and he was still 4 down with only five holes to play, even though he had captured a birdie 3 on the tenth hole. With only five holes left of the round he won the thirteenth with a par 3, halved the fourteenth with a par 4, won the fifteenth with a birdie 3, the sixteenth with a par 3 and the seventeenth with a par 4. With the match all even, both were on the home green with their seconds and both halved the hole in 4s, although Wood's putt hit the cup for a birdie 3 and bounded out as soon as it hit the tin. On the twentieth hole Wood played a fine shot out of the ditch, after half-topping his second shot, but then he laid Pitt a stymie, so that Pitt, whose ball was not more than 18 inches from the cup, had to content with a half in 5. However, Pitt was on the green on the twenty-first hole in 2, holing out in 4 for a win, Wood having missed his second shot.

Roesch Beaten by Nolan.

The uncertainty of golf was demonstrated yesterday by the ruthless manner in which champions and former champions were mowed down, either in the morning or afternoon rounds. In the forenoon Frank K. Roesch, District amateur champion, was defeated by M. Parker Nolan, 5 and 3, while Robert W. Bowen, the District junior champion, who had qualified in the second sixteen, was beaten by John W. Owens, one of Columbia's youthful golfing stars. Both Roesch and Bowen, however,

SPINACH DIET AID TO MELILLO

What, no spinach? Then a dinner engagement wouldn't interest Oscar Melillo, second baseman for the St. Louis Browns. Melillo, shown above eating his lunch at Yankee Stadium, New York, is on a spinach diet and it has converted him from a puny hitter into a hefty slugger.

Hadley Turns Back Tribe After Brown Is Hit Hard; Game Proves 12-5 Rout

Nats Wipe Out Lead With 4-Run Rally in First Inning.

Harris, Morgan and Averill Hit Homers; Harder Pounded.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE leading Mackmen have lost few games of late, but when these defeats have been shown on the scoreboard, the information usually has had the effects of a "stop" sign on the Nationals. It was different yesterday, though, seeming to act as a tonic instead, the result being a 12-to-5 defeat of the Indians which, coupled with a St. Louis victory over the league leaders, allowed the Washington Club to pull up to within three and a half games of first place.

This triumph, the tenth out of thirteen starts since the Nats returned home, gave them a record of six in a row for the second time this season and was the fourth straight over Peckinpaugh's Tribe, which has yet to beat the Johnsons this year.

The game started off like a hit-or-miss affair with the two Brown boys who started, Clint for the visitors and Lloyd for the Nats, being pounded off the hill early and it was Irving Hadley's relief pitching which turned the tide for the home team. He relieved the resident southpaw, who had been in hot water most of the time, in the third canto and allowed but three hits thereafter, pitching an exceptional game and justly earning credit for the victory.

Peck's Relief Hurlers Also Hammered.

Had Peckinpaugh been as fortunate in relief pitching it would have been a real battle throughout, but the two he called on, Mel Harder and Pat Thomas, were mauled and manhandled as badly as was Brown, the result being that the affair was turned into a rout in the latter innings.

Fifteen hits were credited to the Nats, who worked on a "two or no count" basis, Buddy Myer showing the way with three, while two each fell to the lot of Manush, Harris, West, Kuhel, Bluege and Spencer. These blows netted 24 bases, including a homer by Harris, a triple by Myer and doubles by West, Kuhel and Bluege. Several of the enemy hits were no gentle taps, either, for Myer and doubles by West, Kuhel, Manush and Bluege. Several of the enemy hits were no gentle taps, either, for their nine safeties included homers by Morgan and Averill, triples by Vosmik and Hodapp and doubles by Morgan and Falk, the latter getting his chance in a pinch-hitting role.

Brown Yields Three Runs at Start.

Approximately 3,000 fans turned out and the Indians took much of the joy out of their lives by hopping on Lloyd Brown's shoots for three runs in the very first frame. The Nats refused to quit, however, and pandemonium reigned when they retaliated with a four-run splurge in their half and added two more runs to their total in the next round. Cleveland got one of these runs back in the third but, from then on, it was just a breeze for the home gang, which molded one run in the fifth and then clinched the game by staging another four-run rally in the "lucky" frame.

It only took two hits to give the Walberg Slammed by Browns; Rookie, 19, Stops Sluggers.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11 (A.P.).—Wallace Hebert, 19-year-old southpaw rookie with the St. Louis Browns, started his first big league game here today and handed the Athletics an 8 to 2 defeat.

Hebert, who hails from the Springfield, Mo., club, of the Western Association, held the world's champions to seven hits and in winning cracked Rube Walberg's row of seven straight victories.

Goose Goslin had a perfect day at bat, hitting a homer and triple, among his four safeties. Irving Burns also hit for the circuit.

Cy Williams Let Out As Richmond Manager

Richmond, Va., June 11 (A.P.).—Ray Ryan, former business manager of the Richmond Eastern League Club, was appointed today by Charles A. Somma, recent purchaser of the club franchise, to succeed Fred C. (Cy) Williams as bench manager of the team.

Somma said the appointment of Ryan is for a trial period.

In announcing the release of Williams and the appointment of Ryan, Somma said changes must be made to raise Richmond from the cellar, and that a new management might accomplish this.

Giants Beat Pirates, 8-6, Rallying in 11th

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 11 (A.P.).—The New York Giants had a big punch at the finish of an eleven-inning duel with the Pirates today and put over three runs to win, 8 to 6.

Glenn Spencer, who pitched good relief ball, filled the bases with a walk, a hit and a hit batsman. Then Jackson singled, Vergez hit a long fly and O'Farrell singled, each driving in a run. Pittsburgh got one run off Berly in the last half of the inning but could not repeat its eighth inning feat of tying the score. Carl Hubbell and Heinie Meine fought it out on the mound for eight innings. Berly relieved Hubbell in the ninth and got credit for the victory.

Cincinnati Wins, 2 to 1, From Brooklyn in 11th

Cincinnati, June 11 (A.P.).—The Reds rang up their eighth victory in nine games today by taking an eleven-inning struggle from the Brooklyn Robins 2 to 1.

Most of the game was a pitchers' battle between Silas Johnson and Dazzy Vance with Cincinnati leading 1-0 when Vance was removed for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Two hits and a fielder's choice brought the run. Brooklyn tied the score in the ninth on Herman's single and O'Doul's triple.

Wally Roettger opened the Cincinnati half of the eleventh with a triple. Quinn passed the next two men purposely and Roettger was forced at the plate. But Tony Cuccinello came through with a single to drive in the winning run.

Palm Beach Horseman Plans Big Race Track

West Palm Beach, Fla., June 11 (A.P.).—M. D. Carmichael, West Palm Beach lawyer and horseman, announced today that a $500,000 horse and dog race track and a steeplechase plant would be established here in time for use next winter, providing the voters of Palm Beach County legalize racing by referendum.

He said he is having ground cleared at Belvedere Farm, his country Club development 2 miles west of here, for a mile track. He owns a half-mile track in addition, which he said would be used for dog races.

The State Legislature enacted a law recently that makes horse and dog racing with pari-mutuels legal in Florida. The law provides, however, that counties in which racing is proposed must submit the issue to a popular referendum.

Seibold Stops Cards As Braves Score, 3 to 0

St. Louis, Mo., June 11 (A.P.).—Unable to fathom the pitching of Socks Seibold, the St. Louis Cardinals lost their second straight game of the series to the Boston Braves here today, 3—0. With the defeat the champions' lead was cut to 3½ games.

The Boston hurler permitted only four hits, the first three by Jimmy Collins, the Cardinal substitute first baseman. In the ninth Sparky Adams beat out a grounder. Worthington, with three hits, starred at bat for the Braves.

Johnson, who was relieved by Flint Rhem in the ninth, was charged with the defeat.

CRONIN, HIT, MAY IDLE TODAY

Nats' Star Is Struck on Shoulder by Harder's Pitch.

YESTERDAY'S game came near being mighty costly to the Nationals, for Shortstop Joe Cronin was hit on the right shoulder by Pitcher Mel Harder while at bat in the second inning and later was forced to retire. The club physician was summoned immediately and an X-ray photograph of the injury was taken last night. Fortunately, it shows no fracture of any kind, but the shoulder is mighty sore and the chances are that the Nat shortstop, who is the sparkplug of the team, will not be able to play today.

"Cronin is a pretty gritty fellow and there is a possibility that he may try to start tomorrow's game," said the club physician last night, "but his shoulder is badly bruised

Spanish Play Wins Chicago Race by Head

Homewood, Ill., June 11 (A.P.).—The 3-year-old colt Spanish Play, fourth in the Kentucky Derby, demonstrated today that he is rounding into top form for his American Derby engagement by carrying the Knebelkamp & Morris silks to victory by a head over T. E. Mueller's Pittsburgher in the 7-furlong feature of the day's card at Washington Park.

Worst Boxer Available Is Matched With Carnera To Give Fans Even Fight

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

BARRING unforeseen developments, a noble experiment will be conducted at the home of the Brooklyn Baseball Club Monday night when Patrick Redmond, an Irishman weighing 250 pounds, enters the ring to determine whether Primo Carnera is as bad a prize fighter as people think he is.

Some people think Primo can not be as bad as they think he is, but there is a large left wing majority who insist he is even worse. At any rate, it is apparent that a heavy burden of proof will rest on Mr. Redmond, and it seems possible that the event will have the scientific merit that it will discover new and hitherto unsuspected horizons of awfulness.

The theory of the experiment is that if Primo does not put Patrick on the floor or in the water, as the case may be, within ten rounds, then the point will have been proved.

Redmond Selected For the Job.

Mr. Redmond was selected for the job to keep Carnera at work, without, at the same time, disobeying a court order which decreed that Primo must not fight any dangerous opponent prior to the fulfillment of an engagement to meet the winner of the impending Schmeling-Stribling bout under the auspices of the Madison Square Garden Corporation. The Garden Corporation desires to match Carnera for the heavyweight championship of the world, and there was an uneasy feeling among the directors that they might be embarrassed in their business plans if their potential heavyweight champion should be interrupted in the meantime. Obedient to this decree, Mr. James J. Johnston, the promoter of the present experiment, made a diligent search for a pugilist having the peculiar qualifications which the situation required.

First, Mr. Johnston thought of Big Boy Peterson, the young man with the rocking-chair feet who tipped over within 30 seconds on the occasion of Primo's first American experiment.

"He seems reliable," Mr. Johnston said, "but I can not take any chances. "If he should make himself dangerous to Primo, the honorable court might give him three months under glass for contempt of court. When you are under an obligation to protect the prestige of a

Keen Interest In Clash of Star Colts

Jamestown Threatens Record of Derby Winner.

Six Other Starters in Race Considered Outclassed.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Destined from the beginning to be in reality a race to determine the best 3-year-old, and this seeming to have narrowed down largely to a two-horse affair between Twenty Grand and Jamestown, the Belmont Stakes Saturday loom larger as a consequence of the matching of these two great colts.

In the early days of racing, people crossed the continent to see match races where a decision among the leaders had made it a test between two of the best. The races of Sir Henry and Eclipse on Long Island brought people from many States, and New Orleans was once the testing ground for the Lexingtons and other great horses.

Little Interest in Other Horses.

While it appears that the Belmont, the mile-and-a-half test for 3-year-olds, will have a field of eight, this does not remove the great interest from the two big horses of the year, the G. D. Widener and Greentree colts mentioned above.

The impression is growing that Twenty Grand, winner of the Derby and the Wood Memorial, will like the route and the wide track in the Belmont Stakes, which should gross about $70,000, and that he should conquer the speedy Philadelphia colt.

There can be no intersectional interest in the Belmont this year, for the West has nothing that can beat either of the stars in the Belmont. Therefore the race is strictly between Jamestown and Twenty Grand. Besides these two, the starters in the Belmont probably will be Polydorous, Sun Meadow, Anchors Aweigh, running mate of Twenty Grand; Mad Career, Great Gun and Clock Tower.

Belmont Closes Saturday.

The Belmont meeting will close Saturday, and then will follow the twenty-three day summer meeting at Aqueduct, the most convenient track around New York in point of accessibility, and the horses are never out of sight of the public. This opening will be Monday. During the meeting will be decided the Queens Handicap, the famous Brooklyn, the Shevlin, the Carter, the Hudson and the Great American Stakes, for 2-year-olds. The Queens County Handicap will feature the opening day.

Bobby Jones' 66 Sets Atlanta Course Record

Atlanta, Ga., June 11 (A.P.).—Bobby Jones, playing his first round of golf since his recent return from Hollywood, Calif., set another course record today while playing in a foursome which included his father. His 18-hole score was 36—30—66, one stroke under the previous record for the new course at East Lake Country Club.

On the out nine Bobby was one over par, but on the other nine he carded an eagle, four birdies and four pars.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

UNLESS you are a professional strong-man you could not lift a 12-inch cube of platinum, nor even budge it, for the total weight of such a cube would be 1,338.48 pounds.

* * * *

In making a speed test at West Point, N. Y., May 23, 1930, Mark Koenig, formerly with the Yankees, threw a baseball at the dazzling speed of 150 feet per second. At this rate, the fast ball of a pitcher would travel the distance from the pitcher's box to home plate, 60½ feet, in approximately two-fifths of a second.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply. JOHN HIX.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, June 11.—With the return of clear weather and the track at its best after four days of inclement atmospheric conditions, the Washington Park course should attract a large crowd of racing patrons to the popular Homewood track, to witness the well balanced program tomorrow.

Although no special feature has been carded, many of the events are closely matched and with the Shore Acre purse, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds exclusively, a test at seven furlongs, as the main contest, the fans should enjoy the sport.

Ten have been named to start in the feature, fifth on the program, which brings out the leading sprinters in the 3-year-old division. SWEEP ALL, from the Dixiana Stable, is considered one of the most consistent colts of his age, and on his recent efforts must be given the call. His most formidable rival, and one who is capable of extending the above colt, is the G. W. Atkins star INSCO. This speedster raced well in his earlier engagements, but sulked in his Chicago debut the other day. Carrying equal weight with SWEEP ALL, they should produce a keenly contested affair. OSWEGO, from the Gallaher and Combs establishment, is attaining his best form and with his last as a conditioner, figures to gain the minor award.

FIRST RACE—Twenty juvenile claimers have been entered in the five and a half furlongs of the opening dash, with the Paradise Stock Farm's CERVEZA, favored to show the way. BOTTLED BOURBON has trained well and a final five-panel spin in 1:09 2-5 attests his fitness. ADSUM, in the Tennessee Stable, is selected for the show.

SECOND RACE—Another limit field of twenty sprinters will face the barrier in the six furlongs of the second number, which is fashioned for 4-year-olds and upward. JACK HOWE, lightly weighted with 110 pounds, has the speed of this group and is favored to annex the purse. CRAZY COOT weakened last start but the C. V. Whitney 4-year-old should furnish the opposition.

JUSTINA, in the G. Collins string, raced impressively to finish second to SUPREME SWEET recently and off that effort will be difficult to keep out of the money.

THIRD RACE—A select list of eight 2-year-old fillies will contest the purse in the five-and-a-half furlongs of the third event. AT SUNRISE was beaten a nose by PRINCESS CAMELIA over a muddy track, but with a change in track conditions, the Schorr juvenile is picked to reverse the decision. MARCASITE should hold PRINCESS CAMELIA safe for the place.

FOURTH RACE—Of the twenty 3-year-olds and upward, scheduled to start in the one-mile of the fourth number, DARK ENTRY, from the H. P. Headley stable, should take the measure of this band of platers. In his last he weakened at a mile and an eighth, but should last in the shorter route here. MUCKER turned in a splendid performance to defeat his field last outing and is on edge. The Sweep colt is accorded the place selection. PORT HARLEM will appreciate the fast strip and is given the show call.

SIXTH RACE—Another limit field of claimers will contest the mile and an eighth route in the sixth heat. HARPOON has shown the most consistent form of this group and his best effort should result in a victory for the E. B. Carpenter colorbearer. The place is reserved for THE SOUTHERNER. This fast stepping gelding in the R. Thatcher string scored an easy victory last start and should finish in the runner-up position, with SILVER SCEPTER selected over the others for the remainder of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—Twenty of the older horses in training will match strides over the mile and an eighth route, in the final event on the card. MOTHER'S CHOICE disappointed in her previous outing, over a muddy track, but should redeem herself over the fast strip. DODGSON has shown consistent form in his Chicago campaign and will force the pace. WINNIE JO has not raced to her best efforts, but appears best of the others for the minor award.

JAMESTOWN IN SPEEDY WORKOUT

Runs 1¼ Miles in Fast Time of 2:08 3-5 as Big Race Nears.

NEW YORK, June 11 (A.P.).—As a final preparation for his battle with Twenty Grand in the $75,000 Belmont Stakes Saturday, George D. Widener's Jamestown today worked out a mile and a quarter over a muddy Belmont Park racing strip in the excellent time of 2:08 3-5.

"Pony" McAtee, the little veteran rider, who will pilot Jamestown Saturday, was in the saddle as the son of St. James broke at the quarter pole on the main track and then stepped along at a rapid but even pace. The easy manner in which he flew over the sloppy oval made the "railbirds" sit up and take notice.

Reels Off Mile in 1:4 1-5.

In company with Condescend, a stablemate, he reeled off the furlongs in the following fractional times: 0:12, 0:23 3-5, 0:35 3-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:01, 1:13 2-5, 1:27, 1:40 2-5 for the mile, 1:54 1-5 and the full distance in 2:08 3-5.

Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow, also slated to start in the rich classic, received his final prep in the shape of a mile and a quarter gallop, his time for the distance was 2:08 4-5.

Phillies Bow to Cubs 4-2, Despite 2 Homers

Wrigley Field, Chicago, June 11 (A.P.).—Home runs by Chuck Klein and Don Hurst were the only blows off Bob Smith that meant anything today as the Chicago mound star hurled the Cubs to a 4-to-2 victory over Philadelphia in the second game of the series. Klein's home run was the first score off Smith and came in the sixth inning. It was his fifteenth of the season. Hurst got his in the next inning.

The Bruins got ten hits off Benge, Hal Elliott, and Fallenstine, winning the game in the fourth inning when Wilson singled, Jurges tripled and Grimm singled. They had scored one in the third by hits by Smith and Cuyler, and a long fly by Hornsby. Another resulted on errors in the ninth.

PITT WINS 21-HOLE COLUMBIA MATCH

Bradley H. Burrows, District public links champion, was defeated by Gordon Wood and Paul J. Frizzell, who was the runner-up in the Columbia event last year, was eliminated yesterday afternoon. Other well-known players who are out of the picture, except in consolation flights, are J. Munro Hunter, jr., Indian Spring; J. J. Lynch, Argyle, and James G. Drain, winner of the recent Washington Club tournament.

Nicholson Wins In 20 Holes.

There were numerous extended matches. Henry D. Nicholson, former champion of the Washington Club, won a 20-hole match in the morning from D. C. Gruver, but lost in the afternoon on the twentieth hole in his contest against Charles W. Cole, jr., Indian Spring. George R. Holmes, Columbia, won on the twentieth hole from Herbert A. Mihills, president of the Indian Spring Club, while the number of matches which were decided on the home green demonstrated the evenness with which the players were matched against each other. The summary:

HADLEY HALTS TRIBE AS NATS WIN, 12-5

Indians their trio in the opener. Hodapp walked, Averill singled and then Morgan clouted one over the right-field wall. Passes helped the Nats get these back, and with interest, in the home half. After Myer had tripled as a starter, Clint Brown fanned Manush and then filled the bases by walking Cronin and Harris. Then West singled two home, Kuhel's one-baser scored another, and a fourth run counted after Vosmik's catch of Bluege's foul fly.

Myer also opened the second with a hit, beating out a roller to Morgan, and this started a two-run rally. Manush singled and the aisles were packed when Cronin was hit. Infield outs by Harris and West let the runners score.

Vosmik's Triple Scores Morgan.

With two dead in the third, Morgan doubled and Vosmik tripled and the run which resulted was the only other credited the Indians until Averill hit his homer over the right-field wall while leading off in the eighth. It was following Vosmik's three-bagger, that Hadley came on the scene, making his first appearance on the hill since Memorial Day. He pitched brilliant ball, striking out six and walking but two.

Washington resumed scoring in the fifth when a marker was molded from Harris' single, West's double, a hit batsman, and Bluege's fly deep enough to allow Harris to check in after the catch.

Thomas faced the Nats in the seventh and this veteran found the going mighty rough. Hardly had he gotten on the job when the bases were filled, the result of two walks and Kuhel's double, which separated them. Spencer singled two home and, after Hadley had laid down a sacrifice, two more registered on Myer's one-base clout to center.

Harris' homer into the left-field bleachers opening the home eighth, completed the carnage for the day, although two more walks, with Bluege's double sandwiched in between, had the sacks fully peopled when the final out was turned in.

Kuhel, Hadley, Manush and West all contributed fielding plays which were out of the ordinary, especially the Nat first-sacker's feature contribution—a leading one-hand grab of Kamm's liner to end the third and shut off a run.

FISCHER, FARRELL TO OPPOSE TODAY and quite painful and it is my guess that he will have to remain inactive for a couple of days at least."

In the first inning, Cronin slightly split the index finger of his right hand while taking a return throw from Outfielder Harris, but this injury is only trivial.

When Cronin was hit by Harder, many thought that the ball had struck the side of his head, but it seems that he turned and threw his shoulder in the way of the ball.

Cronin's consecutive-game hitting streak, which has extended to eighteen, was not broken yesterday, despite the fact that he was withdrawn at the start of the fourth inning without having been credited with a hit. On his only two times at bat he walked once and was hit once; hence he was charged with no official times at bat and gets credit for extending it another game.

It will be the sensational rookie southpaw, Carl Fischer, against the more sensational and more experienced right-hander, Wesley Ferrell, when the Nationals and Indians meet in the third game of their series at Griffith Stadium this afternoon. Ferrell, who has been having an infected tooth treated for some time, had it extracted yesterday morning, but claims that this will not prevent him from taking his mound assignment today.

The announcement that the Cleveland pitching ace will do his stuff, plus the fact that it is "ladies' day," means that a banner Friday crowd will be on hand this afternoon. In Ferrell's last start he held the Yankees to three hits.

The Nats will be seeking their seventh victory in a row and their fifth straight over the Indians, who haven't beaten them this season.

Morgan's homer, which cleared the right-field wall about 60 feet fair, was a prodigious clout for a right-handed hitter.

Lloyd Brown was close to being knocked out in both the first and second rounds, with Irving Hadley warming up strenuously for relief use. When Morgan doubled and Vosmik tripled with two dead in the third, the pitching change was made.

Vosmik's judgment in catching Bluege's foul-fly in the first, which was deep enough to let West score after the catch, was not particularly good. Had he used his head, he would have let the ball fall and taken a chance that the batter would not get a hit or a deep fair fly.

Kuhel jumped a mile high to make a great one-hand grab of Kamm's liner to end the alien third with Vosmik scoring at the time.

Jack Hayes, who went to third, with Bluege shifted to short, when Joe Cronin retired after Washington's third, was robbed of a hit by Porter when the Tribe right fielder raced back almost to the score board for a long looper. This play ended the home fourth.

Hadley fanned the side in the fifth, but granted a triple to Vosmik and a walk to Averill between the first and second strike-outs. Morgan and Vosmik were his victims ending the round.

Umpire "Bull" Guthrie was not very consistent in the visitors' fifth. He called a fourth ball on Averill, with the count three and two, and a strike on Morgan, next up, on almost identical half-swings at the offerings.

Harder picked up poor spots to hit batters. He filled the bases when he knicked Cronin in the second, and he did the same thing when he hit Kuhel in the fifth. None was out on either occasion.

West made a long running catch of Sewell's hard-hit drive in the sixth, which looked like a hit as the ball left the bat.

Averill did not have a chance afield until the sixth. Then he went back to the base of the stand in deep center to rob Dave Harris of an extra-baser.

For the second consecutive game, "Bib" Falk doubled while coming up as a pinch-hitter. He did so today in the ninth while representing Pitcher Thomas at the swinging block.

PRIMO'S FOE WORST MAN AVAILABLE

Redmond Obtained to Make the Bout an Even Match.

potential heavyweight champion of the world you have to exercise the utmost care.

"I gave serious consideration of diving Dan O'Dowd, also, but when I got into communication with his manager, Mr. Pat Meade, the first thing he said was, 'My Daniel will bat his ears off.' So I quickly hung up the receiver and broke off negotiations. If necessary, I can prove this in court to show that I was trying to do the right thing.

"Then, one afternoon as I was cudgeling my brain with a cudgel which I always keep handy for this purpose, the door opened and in walked Mr. Tom O'Rourke at the head of Patrick Redmond. Mr. O'Rourke yelled, 'Company, halt!' And Patrick halted.

"I took one look at Patrick and cried, 'Heaven sent you.' And at that Patrick broke out, singing 'Sure, a little bit of heaven fell out the sky one day * * *'

"I can not sing dialect," said Mr. Johnston, "but I soon discovered that Redmond was my man. I could now go on with my plan to revive prosperity, starting at Ebbets Field. And if anything of an untoward nature should happen, I could throw myself on the mercy of the court and insist I had done my best to find the worst man available.

Must Convince The Public.

"There then arose the difficult problem of convincing the public that they would see a contest, even though Primo's opponent was picked not for his ability and ferocity but for his legality and nondangerousness under the order of the honorable court. But the customers seem to have decided that if Redmond was the worst man I could find, then the fight would be the nearest thing to an even match that it is possible to find these days, and, instead of arguing that one man was better than the other, they have been coming to blows over the question of which man is worse. They seem to think anybody is dangerous to Primo.

"It is the most curious situation I have ever seen in pugilism. Primo's defenders in the controversy are giving odds of 8 to 5 on him to lose, and some are even offering even money on him to lose by a knockout. The Redmond party, on the other hand, with unbound confidence in their dark horse, are plunging on Primo to win by a knockout in the first round.

"I hesitate to use the word plunge in connection with this contest, as it seems to bring up unpleasant and unworthy implications. However, I can only assure the public that both boys will be in there giving their very worst at all times and that whichever man is on his feet at the end of the savage onslaught, that man's supporters may feel that they have had a run for their money and that their fighter simply won from a worse man."

Primo's Followers At Home in Wet.

The heavy rainfall did not perturb Mr. Johnston, for, as he pointed out, the customers who have been following Primo Carnera on his travels long ago became accustomed to the splash and spume as his adversaries described their remarkable repertoire of standing-sitting double-jackknife dives, crash dives and gull-swoops, the latter an adaptation of fainting Philip Scott's famous burial-at-sea dive. The customers sitting in the first 30 rows at Primo's exhibitions generally bring sou'westers or umbrellas, and for those who do not bring them the alert cigarette and soda vendors long since added a sideline of individual tarpaulins for rent at $1 each.

"I suppose the patrons will be quite at home in the rain, if it rains," said Mr. Johnston. "Rainproof apparel is part of the ringside costume, like plug hats at the opera. But I hate to see all this rain wasted. It would be so useful to fill the tank if we were using a tank in this contest."

DALY BEATS WILLIS FOR DISTRICT JUNIOR TENNIS CROWN

5-Set Match Of Youths Brilliant

Willis Outsteadied After Rallying to Win 3d, 4th Sets.

Hunt and Ritzenberg Eliminate Seeded Doubles Pair.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

CHARLES DALY, a young automaton of a tennis player, who took his first steps in tennis on the courts of Punahou Academy, Honolulu, yesterday won the junior championship of the District in a five-set battle with Ricky Willis, 6—0, 9—7, 3—6, 2—6, 6—3, and won it only by maintaining as dogged a back-court consistency in the face of desultory brilliant play on the part of his flashy opponent.

Daly all but saw almost certain victory snatched from him by the scintillating brilliancy his opponent began to muster after Daly had won the first nine games. After dropping the first set at 6—0 and behind 3—0 in the second, Willis, an intensely imaginative type of player, with plenty of flash, albeit not always genuine, began splitting the lines with alternate chop, drive and volley in a brilliant exhibition which saw him all but take the second set and then go out to win the third and fourth by virtually run-away margins.

Daly's Steadiness Turns Tide.

To start the fifth set Daly's steadiness once more pushed itself above water as Willis fell into the error which affects players from Cochet down—that of letting down in keenness when a peak abreast of an opponent has been reached. Daly went to 3—1 quickly, only to see his opponent once more ram his shots into unreachable corners to even the score, 3—3.

But the handwriting was on the wall in large figures. Daly broke through Willis' delivery to lead, 4—3, running him unmercifully, and came back to take his own serve for 5—3. He reached match point when Willis finally missed on a rally during which each hit the ball more than a dozen times, but double faulted. Willis obligingly missed again and Daly clinched down on the opportunity.

Both boys were near exhaustion at the end, Daly finding it difficult to stand. It was the most interesting and best-played junior match in several years.

Seeded Team Beaten In Doubles.

The first real upset of the doubles tournament cropped up yesterday when Gilbert Hunt and Nathan Ritzenberg, finalists in the boys' tournament, entered the final round of the doubles by beating the seeded team of Henry Glassies and Joe Dial, 2—6, 7—5, 6—1. The other semifinal round doubles will be played today at 3 o'clock and will bring together yesterday's singles finalists, Daly and Willis, against the team of DeLand and Perkins.

The finals of the doubles will be played Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Daly, for his victory yesterday, will receive the new Washington Tennis Association Trophy. The Dumbarton Trophy was retired last year when Frank Shore won his third leg on the bowl. Daly, 6 feet tall, and strong to boot, will justify his close-cropped haircut by entering West Point shortly after July 1.

Olympics Win Meet At Industrial School

The annual drill and track meet of the Industrial Home School at Blue Plains was held yesterday before one of the largest gatherings ever to witness an event of the sort. The Olympics copped not only the saber for the best drilled company, but donned track suits to run away with the track and field meet which followed.

Maj. Campbell C. Johnson, executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A., presented the saber to the captain of the Olympics, while Miss A. Patricia Morss, chief of the Child Welfare of the Board of Public Welfare, presented a trophy to the captain of the Olympics' track team. Speakers were introduced and award of individual prizes made by Wendell P. Tucker, superintendent of the school.

Saber, cup and individual prizes were donated by the officials of the school.

CAMPOLO STOPS NEGRO.

Newark, N. J., June 11 (A.P.).—Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, stopped Big Bill Hartwell Kansas City Negro, in the third round of a 10-round bout at Clark Field here tonight. Campolo weighed 232; Hartwell 223.

The referee halted the battle early in the third round when Hartwell apparently was no longer able to protect himself.

MD. QUINTET TO PERFORM IN WEST

Plays Wisconsin Five; Game With Navy at College Park.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S champion Southern Conference basket ball team will travel West next winter to play University of Wisconsin on the court. The game at Madison is scheduled for December 30, and will be one of two or three contests to occupy the Terrapins on their journey.

According to present arrangements, Maryland will play at least nineteen games on the court next winter, with twelve contests scheduled for the College Park field house, now under construction. One more game with a Western Conference quintet will in all probability be listed, while it is possible that University of Kentucky may agree to still another game.

The Wisconsin game features Maryland's out-of-town slate. Once before, back in 1926, Maryland went West to meet Michigan.

Outstanding on the Terrapins' home schedule is the game with the Naval Academy listed for January 23. This is the first basket ball game ever scheduled by the Middies at College Park.

Catholic U. Five Scheduled.

Others to appear on Maryland's home floor are Catholic University, Loyola and Johns Hopkins, of Baltimore, Virginia and North Carolina University.

The Terrapins will return to action next winter with the same array of players that won the Southern Conference championship for first time last February. They are Bozie Berger, Ed Ronkin, Jack Norris, Charlie May and Shorty Chalmers.

With this group and the recruits from the undefeated freshman quintet, the Terrapins are expected to prove powerful once again.

The Navy game, marking the first appearance of a Naval Academy Basket Ball Team on a Capital court, may tax the seating capacity of the new fieldhouse, which, according to plans, will accommodate 4,500 persons.

Maryland and Navy Grid Game Here.

Maryland and Navy also are to meet before a Capital audience in a football game, scheduled October 10 in Griffith Stadium. This affair will bring the Middie pigskin chasers before a local crowd for the first time since 1922, when Navy met Penn State.

Other contests listed between the Terrapins and Middies for the 1931-1932 year (all at Annapolis), will be a cross-country meet, November 7; tennis match, April 2; track meet, May 14, and baseball and lacrosse games, May 28.

Following is the Maryland basket ball schedule as arranged at present:

December 30—University of Wisconsin, at Madison, Wis.

January 9, Washington and Lee, at College Park; 11, Loyola, at College Park; 15, Washington and Lee, at Lexington, Va.; 16, V. M. I., at Lexington, Va.; 18, University of Virginia, at Charlottesville, Va.; 20, Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore; 23, Navy, at College Park; 26, V. M. I., at College Park; 30, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, at College Park.

February 3, Catholic University, at College Park; 6, North Carolina University, at College Park; 10, Washington College, at College Park; 13, Western Maryland, at College Park; 15, University of Virginia, at College Park; 17, St. John's of Annapolis, at College Park; 19, North Carolina University, at Chapel Hill, N. C.; 20, Duke University, at Durham, N. C.; 24, Johns Hopkins, at College Park; 27, Southern Conference tournament at Atlanta, Ga.

Orange Boosters' Nine Defeats Louisa, 14-5

Orange, Va., June 11.—The Orange County Boosters, a team made up of players from all over Orange County, many of them college students, romped through the first game of their season here today defeating Louisa 14 to 5. Byrd Smith, pitching his first regular game of the summer, struck out thirteen of the Louisa batters in the eight innings he pitched. Smith last year lost only two games out of twelve pitched.

The Boosters, who last year defeated teams from all over this section and championship teams from the Northern Neck, will follow a schedule of two games a week for the rest of the summer. The box score:

Penn's Crew Displays Speed in Time Trial

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 11 (U.P.). Spread in battle formation, the crews of Syracuse and Pennsylvania took time trials late today over the 4-mile course on the Hudson River. Although a race between the crews had not been arranged, the Orange and Quaker shells fought it out the entire length of the course, and Pennsylvania, not regarded as a serious contender in the annual Poughkeepsie Regatta next Tuesday, more than held its own against the undefeated Syracuse oarsmen.

Before sending his men out, Coach Callow rearranged his Pennsylvania varsity from stem to stern with four regulars losing their jobs. The Orange apparently worked wonders with the crew, for its exhibition against Syracuse stamped it as a formidable shell.

The undefeated Cornell crew and Navy also had time trials just before dusk. The Cornell "wonder boat," which came home first last year, did not look as good yesterday, but the varsity had little trouble beating the Jayvees to the finish line.

Washington, California, Wisconsin, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Columbia also took workouts, but did not row over the regular course.

District A. A. U. Plans For Swimming Meets

Plans for at least one and possibly two outdoor swimming meets here this summer will be discussed Monday night at a meeting of the board of managers of the District of Columbia Association of the A. A. U. The meeting will be called to order at 8 o'clock in the office of Norman Landreau, 729 Fifteenth street northwest. The local association conducted its first outdoor tank championships last summer at McKinley High School.

HOWITZER GIANTS PLAY.

Brooke Grubb's Kensington Howitzer Giants will engage the Fort Meade Tanks Sunday at 3 p. m. on the Garrett Park Field. It will be the first meeting of the two teams and a hot battle is expected, as both boast strong combinations.

RING SHOW DELAYED.

Boston, June 11 (A.P.).—On account of continued heavy rains, Promoter Eddie Mack today put over until next Monday his outdoor boxing show, headed by Babe Hunt, Ponca City, Okla., heavyweight, and Paul Swiderski, of Syracuse. The bout was originally set for last Monday.

FIGHTS OPEN AT LAUREL JULY 1

40 Rounds of Boxing Planned for First Program.

THE night of Wednesday, July 1, was last night named as the date for the opening of the Mid-City Boxing Club, Inc., near Laurel, Md., on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard. The announcement was made by General Manager Angy Gerrin, who later departed for Philadelphia and New York, where, he said, he will negotiate for the services of fighters he plans to use in the premier.

Under present arrangements, Gerrin declared, there will be three heavyweight bouts on the card, and a total of about 40 rounds scheduled with two or three bouts between lighter weight boxers rounding out the program.

Originally, backers of the club planned to open on or about June 15, but the setting of the date was held up until a certain stage had been reached in construction of the arena.

Plan to Seat 7,000.

Work on the arena, situated in a natural woodland amphitheater, is progressing satisfactorily, Gerrin stated, and by the opening date will have been arranged to seat approximately 7,000 persons. Of the total number of seats, about 3,000 will be built on the natural slope of the amphitheater.

Parking space has been provided for 3,000 automobiles, said Gerrin. This space and the capacity for seating can be enlarged as conditions demand, he added.

The Mid City Boxing Club, Inc., is composed of a group of local business men. Charles Essinger is the president and Gerrin treasurer and general manager. Full cooperation of the State Athletic Commission and the authorities of Howard County, in which the arena is located, have been promised them, according to Gerrin.

Southern Regatta Planned For Course Off Speedway

Potomac Boat Club Hopes to tSage Races Here in July as Prelude to National Regatta in 1932.

AS a prelude to the National Bicentennial Regatta, to be held in Washington in 1932, the Potomac Boat Club hopes to bring together a measure of the most active rowing clubs in this region for a giant regatta, which, if present plans eventuate, will be held in the Washington Channel, along the Speedway on the last Saturday in July.

The aid of the Southern Rowing Association has been enlisted and among the clubs whose entries impend are the Arundel Boat Club, of Baltimore; the Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond; the Old Dominion Boat Club, of Alexandria, and the Potomac Boat Club.

Present plans call for the staging of fifteen events, including eight-oared shell races, four-oared shells and doubles, gigs and quads events. All four clubs mentioned are in the best of condition, having been on the water for two months or more.

Preliminary plans are being handled by Francis Fahy, president of the Potomac Boat Club, and Capt. Charles Scott.

DIXIE PIGS TO PLAY.

The Dixie Pigs, leaders of section A in the Capital City League, will oppose the Bolling Field Nine tomorrow at 3 p. m. on the Berwyn field. Frank Giddings will toe the mound for the Pigs.

PERES GAINS FRENCH TITLE.

Paris, June 11 (A.P.).—The betting favorite, Peres, captured the French flyweight championship tonight, defeating Engleman on points in a 15-round bout.

MRS. HAYNES ADVANCES IN TOURNEY

Plays Mrs. Dodge, Surprise Victor, Today in Dixie Golf.

By DILLON GRAHAM.

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., June 11 (A.P.).—Mrs. Harry Dodge, of Jacksonville, Florida's champion woman golfer, today contributed the prize knock-out of the first round match play in the Southern women's tournament here by overwhelming the defending champion, Mrs. David Gaut, of Memphis, 6 and 4.

Through fourteen holes of the match, Mrs. Dodge shot two above par figures and fired a birdie 4 on the last green as a parting gesture. It was an 8-foot putt, which followed a straight line to the cup.

Tomorrow Mrs. Dodge, representing the Timuquana Country Club, of Jacksonville, faces Mrs. Marion Haynes, Washington, who today beat Miss Barbara Hensley, New Orleans, 8 and 6. Thus far the tournament has been one in which advance dope has meant nothing.

Upsets Galore In Tourney.

Yesterday the medalist, Miss Virginia Holzderber, Baltimore, lost to Mrs. Kenan Rodwell, Norfolk, and today Mrs. Rodwell bowed to Mrs. Leon Solomon, Memphis, 4 and 3.

Miss Margaret Maddox, 1929, champion, lost yesterday to Mrs. Gaut, and today Mrs. Gaut fell before Mrs. Dodge.

Mrs. Marion Turple Lake, New Orleans, twice champion, coasted through another round with a 5 and 4 win over Miss Anne Cochrane, of Baltimore, and tomorrow meets Mrs. Boyd Morrow, Baltimore, who today beat Miss Jane Cothran, Greenville, S. C., 1 up.

Mrs. Ruth Reymond, New Orleans, champion in 1922 and 1924, remained in the title chase by defeating Mrs. Thomas Priddy, of Richmond, 2 and 1. Mrs. Carl Hess, of Birmingham, eliminated Miss Estelle Lawson, of Chapel Hill, N. C., 5 and 4, and Mrs. Jean Jones, of Richmond, defeated Miss Elizabeth Dunscomb, of Memphis, 2 up. Tomorrow Mrs. Solomon meets Mrs. Hess and Mrs. Reymond faces Mrs. Jones.

Playing as she did today, Mrs. Dodge probably would down any golfer in the tournament. Her card for the out nine, where she turned with a four-hole advantage, showed eight pars. Except for a 6 on the eighth after her third shot approach fell short, she would have reached the half-way station at even par.

Mrs. Gaut's Putter Fails Her.

She was but one over par on five holes coming back before the match ended on the fourteenth. Mrs. Gaut's favorite putter, which carried her to her fourth Dixie title at Sedgefield last year, failed her miserably today, and there were few holes in which she did not find a trap.

Mrs. Dodge took the first two holes and after halving the third and fourth went 3 up on the fifth. A par 3 on the seventh placed her 4 up. Mrs. Gaut won her first hole on the eighth with a par 5, but Mrs. Dodge gained it back on the ninth. The tenth and eleventh were halved, but Mrs. Dodge won the twelfth to go 5 up. Her putt for a birdie and a victory on the thirteenth hit the cup and bounced out, but she hoisted her colors on the fourteenth with a birdie after Mrs. Gaut got in the woods and needed four to reach the green.

Miss Wilson in Final For British Golf Title

Portmarnock, Ireland, June 11 (A.P.).—Miss Enid Wilson, 21, daughter of a Nottinghamshire physician, and Wanda Morgan, of Westgate-on-Sea, a year or so her junior, will meet tomorrow over the Portmarnock links for the title of British ladies' golf champion.

The two young English girls today won their semifinal matches in handy fashion. Miss Wilson, the English champion, defeated Mrs. R. Greenlees, of Scotland, 2 and 1, and Miss Morgan beat Molly Gourlay, of Camberley Heath, former English champion, 1 up, after leading most of the way.

Sentiment is divided on the winner of the final, Miss Morgan being acclaimed the most improved player in the tournament. Her defeat of Miss Gourlay was considered an upset.

Golf Prize in France Shared by Kirkwood

Beauville, France, June 11 (A.P.).—Andre Boyer, of Nice, today won the Mastbaum Cup and 20,000 francs (about $800) in an international golf competition with the stars of two continents, scoring a 73—67—140, to lead Percy Alliss, of Berlin, by one stroke.

Pierre Hirigoyen, of Chantilly, was third, with 143, while Joe Kirkwood, of New York; Marco Churio, of the Argentine, and Marcel Dallemagne and Pierre Alauguren, of France, were tied for fourth at 145.

Kirkwood shot steady golf—72 and 73—to win his place and his share of the $2,000 in prize money.

CLEMENTS TO MAKE RACE FOR SHERIFF

Clarendon Man Will Oppose Three Others in Arlington County Fight.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A. C. Clements, of Clarendon, who served as sheriff of Arlington County for one term, having been elected in 1919, anonunced yesterday that he will be a candidate for the office of sheriff at the county election in November, against Sheriff Howard B. Fields, incumbent, who has already announced that he is a candidate for reelection.

Mr. Clements is a Spanish War veteran, and is now employed at the Washington Naval Gun Factory.

Sheriff Fields has held the office of sheriff for the past eight years, this being the last year of three terms in office. He had held previously the office of constable, deputy sheriff and deputy United States marshal, making a total of 33 years in police service.

With the announcement of Mr. Clements, the race has now developed into a four-cornered affair. Z. O. The program will include a tap dance by Louise Carl, accompanied by Mrs. Mabel Clark; song, "Washington-Lee Girls," by the club; Spanish gypsy dance, by Louise Carl and Jane Carl, accompanied by Mrs. Clark; Negro dialect stories, by Mrs. Eudora Pearson. The program will conclude with a song, "Good Night, School Girls," by the club.

The elementary schools of Arlington County will close this afternoon at 3 o'clock for the summer vacation. The Washington-Lee High School closes on Monday.

County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp announces that summer classes in both the elementary schools and high school will begin an eight-week term Monday, June 22. Classes will be held at the high school for high school and junior high students. Classes for elementary schools will be announced later as the location for holding these classes has yet to be determined.

Classes will be held five days a week from 8 to 12 o'clock noon.

The question of the continued operation of the dump at the intersection of the new Four Mile road and the Washington-Richmond highway, which investigation at the courthouse has revealed has been going on without a permit, will be aired at the meeting today by citizens of Aurora Hills and Virginia Highlands who have strongly voiced their opposition to the dump, it was learned last night.

Wife of Bandman Is Dead of Stroke

Mrs. Anna Clapp Succumbs Despite Rescue Squad's Effort at Revival.

Mrs. Anna Clapp, 45 years old, wife of Sergt. Ernest Clapp, of the Army Band, died suddenly yesterday at her apartment on the War College grounds as the result of a heart attack.

The fire rescue squad worked for more than an hour trying to stimulate heart action. Medical officers at the Army Post said that Mrs. Clapp had been suffering from heart disease for some time.

She came to Washington from Tennessee, and had lived here for several years. Her husband, Sergt. Clapp, was a captain of field artillery during the World War. They had no children. Funeral arrangements had not been made last night.

DEMENT FACES SUIT IN $10,000 ACTION

Family of Murder Victim Seeks Damages From Acquitted Man.

Suit for $10,000 has been filed in Prince Georges County against Paul E. Dement by the family of Claude L. Hughes, of Branchville, for whose murder Dement was acquitted at the last term of court.

The suit is filed by Virginia Hughes, widow of the slain man, and his five children, through Attorney Leroy Pumphrey, who acted as special prosecutor in the case against Dement. No bill was filed with the notice of suit, but it is understood that the damages are asked for Hughes' death.

Dement was indicted for first degree murder in connection with the death of Hughes, who died several days after being stabbed with a penknife on February 23. A jury, however, found him not guilty.

Suits totaling $36,000 also have been filed against Kent R. Mullikin, chairman of the Prince Georges County delegation in the Legislature, arising out of an automobile accident at Halethorpe, Md., on April 7.

According to bills filed in these cases, an auto driven by Mullikin collided with one driven by Eugene P. Hubbell, injuring Hubbell and three other persons. Those filing the suits are Hubbell and Staten Landes and his two children, Cecil and Maxine, who were passengers in Hubbell's machine. The suits were filed through Attorneys George J. McCeney and David L. Elliott.

Hubbell asks $1,000 for damages to his car and $5,000 for personal injurries. Maxine asks $15,000 for a broken hip, and Cecil $10,000 for a punctured hand and injuries to the head, body and limbs. Landes is suing for $5,000 for bodily injury.

After a debate of more than an hour, the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association indorsed Noble F. Rushe, chief of the Hyattsville department, for presidency of the State convention.

While recorded as a unanimous vote, only nine of the twenty companies voted to indorse Rushe. Representatives of nine other companies did not vote, and two companies were absent.

Companies voting for Rushe were Hyattsville, Cottage City, Capitol Heights, Laurel, Branchville, Riverdale Heights, Berwyn Heights, Marlboro and Tuxedo. Those not voting were Seat Pleasant, Boulevard Heights, Greater Capitol Heights, Mount Rainier, Brentwood, Riverdale, College Park, Glenn Dale and Bowie.

The chief objection to Rushe expressed was that George W. Colburn, of Princess Anne, is a candidate for the post, and that indorsement of Rushe would precipitate a fight between the Eastern and Western Shores. The motion to indorse Rushe was made by George Finger, councilman of Capitol Heights, who recently was asked to resign by other council members. It was seconded by W. A. Trott, of Hyattsville. The Hyattsville company also indorsed Rushe.

The State president will be elected in the convention at Ocean City, Md., July 8 to 11. Delegates and alternates to this convention from Boulevard Heights have been selected. They are: Delegates—Frank Smith, William Smith, Joseph Grendell, C. B. Hartman and Arthur Rabs. Alternates—Paul Tierney, Mrs. William Smith, Gordon Steward, Mrs. C. B. Hartman and Mrs. Arthur Rabs.

The county association appointed a committee to cooperate with a Marlboro committee on plans for the annual county convention. The county association committee comprises Lee Cornwell, Roble Rushe, George Finger and Karl Young, of Mount Rainier.

Suit for absolute divorce was filed yesterday by Arthur T. Gift against Louise Edith Gift, of New York City. Mr. Gift alleges that his wife was unfaithful.

According to the man's bill, filed through Attorney John H. Bittenbender, they were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1928. The alleged infidelity occured in June of last year, he says.

Having started their career by making an arrest within four hours after being sent out on a case, the new police force now has another job. The county commissioners have referred to the force a complaint that dances being held near the home of Joseph E. Goodkey disturb his family.

A county law, generally considered unenforceable, provides that dances may not be held more than once a week without permission from the commisisoners. Such permission never has been granted.

The first arrest made by the force was that of James Welch, charged with the shooting of Charles N. Arnold. Welch was arrested by County Policeman G. William Gray and Deputy Sheriff A. C. Thompson.

Seniors of the Maryland Park High School will present a three-act play, "Art for Heart's Sake," tonight in the school auditorium. The cast includes Francis McGuire, Cecil Whittington, Anna Moulton, Edna Dedman, Esther Owens, Marion Richardson, Tod Stoffel, Audrey Talbert, Gertrude Bowen, Nelson Brown, Florence Close and Noble Ward.

Charles E. Wise, jr., former agricultural engineer for a cement company in Baltimore, has been appointed assistant specialist in agricultural engineering at the University of Maryland, according to an announcement by Dr. T. B. Symonds, director of extension work.

Mr. Wise, a graduate of the Agricultural College of the University of Minnesota, served during the World War. He has run a ranch in Arkansas, was farm management specialist at the University of Minnesota, and in 1923 became chief instructor in charge of the training center for the rehabilitation for disabled men on farms under the Veterans' Bureau.

The pen of barred rock hens, owned by L. L. Powers, of Hyattsville, led its class last week in the egg-laying contest being held at the University of Maryland, with a total of 48 eggs for the 10 hens. Since November 1, 1930, this pen has produced 1,449 eggs, giving it a margin of more than 100 eggs over its nearest competitor.

Leonard Rogers, 11-year-old student at the Spencer Street School, in Hyattsville, yesterday broke his arm when he tripped while playing in the school yard. The youth was brought to Providence Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad.

The annual rural women's short course will begin Monday at the University of Maryland and last until Saturday. The program includes lectures and demonstrations in foods, clothing, child care and training, home furnishing, household management, home administration, poultry, landscape gardening, parliamentary law and recreation.

The five-day session will include a home-coming reception Monday night, a reception by President and Mr. Raymond A. Pearson Tuesday night, a historical pageant Wednesday night and a vesper service on the campus Thursday night. Thursday will be Master Farm Home Maker's day, and a special program will be held at the presentation of certificates Friday morning.

Wife of Quenstedt Is Listed as Democrat

Annapolis, Md., June 11 (A.P.). Though Mayor E. Quenstedt will seek reelection as a Republican at the July 13 municipal election, his wife, Mrs. May L. Quenstedt, is listed as a Democrat on the registration books.

She gave her affiliation as Democratic at the time she registered in 1927 when her husband first sought the mayoralty as a Republican, and has not changed it since.

The election books also show that Mrs. Regina C. Rowe, listed as the wife of Roscoe C. Rowe, Republican candidate for city counselor, declined to give her party affiliation when she registered.

PRISON HEAD BEGINS BRUTALITY INQUIRY

Virginia Official Finds Camp Inmates Punished by Being "Stood Up."

Richmond, Va., June 11 (A.P.).—Frank Bane, commissioner of public welfare, said today he expected to have a report for Gov. Pollard within a week on charges of brutal treatment of prisoners at a convict camp in Goochland County.

Mr. Bane, at the request of the governor, began yesterday his investigation of the charges as made by Norfolk citizens in a petition to the chief executive. He said prisoners had been punished at the camp by being "stood up." This means, he explained, that prisoners have been handcuffed to the ceiling, but with wrists on a level with the chest, during the working hours for other prisoners. While tiring, the commissioner said, this was not a strained position.

Mr. Bane said he planned to interview the petitioners as well as to complete a thorough investigation at the camp before making his report to the governor.

Willie Johnson, 25-year-old Negro, named in the petition as a victim of brutalities, and serving his second term as a felon, said he was whipped six times in his first term and twice during his second. He said he had been in trouble at four different camps, and once had been given 30 days' solitary confinement in the State Penitentiary.

The superintendent told the commissioner the whipping was according to the regulations prescribed and was a punishment of last resort.

Ritchie Tax Appointee Faces Fight for Office

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 11.—John G. Bower, jr., appointed collector of State taxes for Washington County by Gov. Ritchie, was given until June 15 to show cause why an injunction should not be granted enjoining him from taking office. The petition for injunction was filed by Max C. Mallott, tax collector-elect, who has failed to qualify because his bond has been unacceptable.

Mr. Mallot contended he offered to give bond, but the county board did not accept it because no county depository had been named. In the meantime $1,000,000 in taxes are uncollected.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

COLUMNIST COOLIDGE'S COLLAPSE.

THE Columnists Union and Marching Club will meet soon and expel Calvin Coolidge from membership. Grounds: Conduct unbecoming a newspaper feature writer.

* * * *

Columnist Coolidge has asked and obtained a vacation from July 1 to mid-September on the plea he needs a rest from the task of batting out one of the shortest newspaper features ever written. His action has stunned features writers everywhere.

* * * *

If former President Coolidge had been a city-bred man, a run-of-the-mill type of citizen who had taken suddenly to newspaper feature writing, a request for a rest would not have been surprising, but here's a man, born amid the rugged mountains of Vermont and raised on hard work, demanding an all-summer rest from writing four or five paragraphs a day!

* * * *

Tell us it ain't so, Calvin!

* * * *

Tell us there's something wrong with the picture of a boy raised in the sunrise-to-sunset school of daily chores wearying under the weight of a 250-word composition each day!

* * * *

Tell us that the youth who used to saw a cord of wood, get in the hay, feed the cows and do the maple sugarin' all between breakfast and lunch isn't sending up a cry for help from the job of covering one sheet of paper with typewritten words once in 24 hours.

* * * *

IT just doesn't seem possible, Calvin, that private life and the big money has softened you up that much. There isn't a newspaper feature writer in the country getting more money for less work. And you want a long vacation from a job any union feature writer could toss off between his grapefruit and coffee each morning, without even considering he had had a workout. Shucks!

* * * *

Two hundred and fifty words a day, Calvin, are less than a housewife writes in a note to the milkman telling him not to leave anything tomorrow.

* * * *

Why, Cal, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. Yes, siree, sir!

* * * *

You don't even have to compose any poems, think of a word to rhyme with petunia or bat off any snappy paragraphs. You just call a secretary and dictate some stuff to the effect that after the rain comes the sunshine.

* * * *

And you can't stand it!

* * * *

Just one question, Mr. Coolidge: What are you going to do if there's a chance for you to run for President in 1932 as the workingman's candidate? We pause for a reply.

IT IMPROVES 'EM.

TOMMY ARMOUR, winner of the British open, is sightless in one eye and has a crippled arm as a result of wounds in the World War. His skill proves what we have always contended—that every golfer is better off shot.

A broadcasting company offers a prize of $5,000 for the best musical composition composed by an American and which can be played in twelve minutes. Not twelve times in twelve minutes, you understand.

The income tax inquiry shows that Al Capone's average income has been about $200,000 a year. This is very hard on a public educated to believe that the king of the racketeers got that much money for a forenoon's work.

The Wickersham Commission has filed a report on the courts. Now all we have to do is wait and see if any of the members agree with the conclusions.

ELMER TWITCHELL says that the luckiest boys this June are those who are graduating from agricultural colleges. "They are all fitted for the apple industry, anyhow," he explains.

HORSE SHOW DRAWS UPPERVILLE THRONGS

C. E. Norman Big Winner in Forty-first Exhibition at Grafton Farms.

Special to The Washington Post.

Upperville, Va., June 11.—Ideal weather, excellent horse flesh and an unusually large first-day crowd marked the opening day of the forty-first annual exhibition of the Upperville Colt and Horse Show, held at Grafton Farms today. Judging continued throughout the day, the morning being devoted to the showing of heavy drafts and the hunter improvement classes.

In the heavy drafts, C. E. Norman, of Purcellville, took five first prizes. Norman's driver, Alex Ramey, won two $5 gold pieces as the driver of the winning four-horse team and the winning two-horse team. S. D. Childs, of Summit Point, W. Va., also won two firsts, a second and a third in heavy drafts.

Henry Norman's Lucky Strike chestnut yearling colt took two first prizes in the hunter improvement yearling and the best yearling sired by bureau of animal industry and remount service station.

Mrs. Belmont Close Winner.

Competition was keen in all classes, especially in the lightweight 3-year-old class, where some time was required before a decision was finally reached by the judges in favor of Mrs. Raymond Belmont's Quaker Hood. The afternoon was devoted to hunter classes, six classes being shown, 195 hunters topping the hurdles during the afternoon performances. In all classes performances were excellent except 3-year-old hunter class, which was marked by a number of spills and balks, these novices not being at ease their first time over the hurdles in the ring.

In the 4-year-old hunter class Dr. L. M. Allen's Clifton's Choice turned a complete somersault over the fourth jump throwing his rider, Norman Haymaker. At first it was thought Haymaker was badly hurt, but later developments showed he had received only bruises and a sprained arm.

Judges today were: Hunters, William Dupont, jr., and Henry G. Vaughan; remount classes, Maj. W. M. Grimes; heavy drafts, Scott Grant and T. C. Marshall.

Classes tomorrow will be devoted to thoroughbreds, ponies, road hacks and hunters, starting at 10 a. m. Officers of the association are W. G. Fletcher, president; Waugh Glascock, first vice president; R. S. Peach, secretary and treasurer, and H. R. Chamblin, manager. A distressing accident happened late this afternoon when Thomas Lackey, rider for D. C. Sands, was kicked in the face by a horse while in the paddock. Reports are that his face was mashed by the blow and his nose broken. He was taken to the Winchester Memorial Hospital.

Train Hits Truck; Driver Is Killed

World War Veteran Loses Life at Crossing at Catlett, Va.

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., June 11.—Lewis Heflin, World War veteran, age 35, met instant death this morning when he was struck by a northbound train on the Southern Railway. The accident occurred at Catlett, Va., about 40 miles south of Washington. Heflin was driving a milk truck across the track when hit.

His remains were taken to an undertaking establishment in Manassas, Va. He is survived by his widow.

There were no eye witnesses to the accident. It is thought that box cars on the siding may have obstructed his vision of the oncoming express train, which makes no stop at this station.
